

PLAYING FOR GOOD TERMS

Filipino Emissaries Go Back.

MUST QUIT THE WAR.

Their Surrender the Only Conditions.

General Otis Promises Complete
Amnesty to All Who Lay Down Their Arms.

MANILA, April 29.—3 p. m.—The conference today between General Otis and Col. Manuel Argueles and Lieut. Jose Bernal, who came from General Luna under a flag of truce yesterday, to ask for a cessation of hostilities, was fruitless.

It is understood that the Filipino commissioners were given the terms upon which the Americans will consent to negotiate. The Filipinos admit that they have been defeated and it is expected that they will return with fresh proposals from General Luna.

MUST SURRENDER.

General Otis Will Treat With Insurgents to
No Other End.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—General Otis called the war department today to the conference with the Filipinos terminated this morning. He says that they wanted three weeks in which to allow their congress to decide whether hostilities should cease. The proposition was declined. The representatives retired to the insurgent lines.

General Otis says the insurgents are tired of fighting and are no doubt seeking the best terms.

In another cable General Otis expresses thanks to the president for his appreciation of the work of the army in the Philippines.

It is stated at the war department that the insurgent leaders probably will confer and seek another conference with General Otis, and that the general will no doubt grant general amnesty.

The full text of the dispatches from General Otis are as follows: "Manila, April 29.—Adjutant General, Washington: Conference with insurgent representatives terminated this morning. They request a cessation of hostilities three weeks to enable them to call their congress to decide whether to continue prosecution of war or propose terms of peace. Proposition declined and full amnesty promised on surrender. Believe insurgents tired of war but seek to secure terms of peace through what they denominate their representative congress."

"OTIS."

"Manila, April 29.—Adjutant General, Washington: The congratulations of his excellency, the president, for which all grateful will be conveyed as directed."

"OTIS."

A RUSE TO GAIN TIME.

General Otis' View of the Overtures of the Filipinos.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A dispatch from Manila says: In an interview with General Otis at the former Spanish governor's palace in Malacanang, the American commander said:

"The insurgents thought that their position on the river bank at Calumpit was impregnable. There they made a successful stand against the Spaniards in 1896."

"Our success in storming their strong entrenchments has demoralized them and the people are ready to give up the fight. As to the emissaries who have been sent by General Luna, my opinion is that they desire to gain time. They say that they wish to submit the question of continuing the war or not to their congress meeting in May. These leaders think that they represent the Filipino people."

"I answered that I would be glad to receive emissaries from the insurgent chiefs, provided they came with a proposition for absolute surrender. These were the only terms that I could consider."

"The emissaries would not agree to this as they thought it contrary to the dictates of honor. The emissaries added that if peace were forced upon them it would not be permanent."

The Filipino refugees are all gathered at San Fernando. The insurgents of the north are said to be

are returning to their homes within our territory.

ARE HELD PRISONERS.

Baler Insurgents Say They Have the Men of the Yorktown.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila says: The insurgents at Baler state that they have the missing men of the gunboat Yorktown and are holding them as prisoners.

The initiating team of the Fort Wayne Elks have a wide reputation for the way they introduce candidates to membership, and at last night's session several members of outside lodges were present to find out their methods and they departed satisfied. The class of six who were initiated last night were W. D. Jones, Charles Wiese, George Jewell, Harry Culbertson, James Hurst and W. W. Rosenthal. The visitors were:

Congressman Robinson made an address and other speeches and addresses were given. G. W. Wilson and Dr. Mungen acted as toastmasters.

A CONCERT PHONOGRAPH.

Latest Production of the Edison Company
Now on Exhibition Here.

C. B. Haynes, representing the National Phonograph company of the Edison laboratory at Orange, N. J., is at the Packard piano store giving exhibitions of the latest production of Mr. Edison's wonderful genius. It is a mammoth concert phonograph which produces a much greater volume of sound than the old style phonograph, and reproduces the tones in all their natural richness and clearness. There are no grating, metallic discords, but the beauty and sweetness of the human voice, or the melody of the instrument is perfectly rendered. Its power will fill the largest auditorium, and it is claimed that under favorable circumstances the new concert phonograph can be heard at a distance of half a mile. It is worth a visit to the Packard store to hear.

ORDERED HOME.

Fort Wayne Recruiting Station Will Close
This Evening.

Today will complete, for the present at least, the enlisting of men for the regular army in Fort Wayne. Captain Waterman yesterday received orders from Captain Black, the recruiting officer at Indianapolis, to close the Fort Wayne office and bring all records and stationery to Indianapolis. The order is, no doubt, due to the fact that enlistments have been coming in very slowly of late. The office was opened March 10, and there has been a total of sixty-nine men sent forward from the post—thirty six during March and thirty-three in April.

James R. Hill, of Warsaw, enlisted today, and will be sent to the Pacific coast. Captain Waterman thinks it probable the office in this city will be reopened after a few months. He leaves for Indianapolis tomorrow.

This welcome news will create unanimous satisfaction and joy throughout the German empire and I thank your excellency most heartily for it. May the new cable unite our two great nations more closely and help to promote peace, prosperity and good will among their people."

President McKinley replied as follows:

"I have received with pleasure your majesty's telegram regarding the joining of the two continents by a direct cable. It affords me genuine gratification to give consent to the landing of this new cable on the shores of the United States and more so as I saw therein an opportunity to further the high mission of international telegraphy drawing in closer the distant nations and bringing their peoples into more intimate associations in interests of mutual advantage, good will and amity. That the new cable will prove an additional bond between the two countries is my fervent wish and hope."

GLASSCOCK IS BACK.

Manager Glasscock returned from Indianapolis at noon today. He did not see John T. Brush, who was in Chicago, but consulted with President Golt and Manager Nash, both of whom assented that President Power was wrong in the Carney decision. Nick Young was telegraphed this afternoon for permission to pitch Carney and President Power was notified that inasmuch as Carney had signed only a Fort Wayne contract he could be pitched in championship games until the national board made its decision. He may pitch to-morrow at Toledo. He will, at least, pitch one of the four games there.

WILL BE MANY BIDS

For the Work of Paving the Fort Wayne Streets.

Five Asphalt Companies Telegraph for Specifications—The Intercepting Sewer—Notes.

There will be plenty of bidders for the work on Fort Wayne streets this summer. This has been indicated during the past two days by the receipt of five telegrams from the east making inquiry for plans and specifications of the proposed street improvements. These five messages were from representatives of asphalt companies who are desirous of bidding on the work. Among these were telegrams from the Trinidad Paving company, of New York, and the Vulcan Asphalt company, of Philadelphia. The Bermudez company, of Indianapolis, also asked for copies of the specifications. Clerk Schmidt said this morning that the board would not make reply to the messages for the reason that they did not know the kind of asphalt the companies handled and the specifications limited the material to Alcatraz, Trinidad and Bermudez. It is expected, however, that some of these companies will submit bids on the specifications and force down the price of asphalt. There is hardly a doubt now but that the Alcatraz, Trinidad and Bermudez people will submit bids. Besides these it is expected that there will be not less than four bids on vitrified brick and two more on block asphalt. Notwithstanding all this competition, well posted street builders believe the prices will range much higher than last season. Some of the bidders are expected in the city Monday, although the bids are not opened until Thursday evening.

THE BIG SEWER

City Engineer Randall is making drafts of the intercepting sewer which plans will be submitted to the officers of the Nickel Plate railway. The sewer will cross the Nickel Plate near Orr's mill, again at Glasgow avenue. The city desires to use the right of way of the railway for a big portion of the sewer. The present plan also carries it through two houses and a barn in Reed's subdivision to the city.

MAY GO BACK TO HIS HOME

This Privilege Allowed
Mr. Schell.

JUDGE SO DECIDED.

Physicians Testify as to His Health.

Assert That He Has Some Chances for Recovery—Interesting Court News.

In the circuit court this morning E. V. Harris, attorney for J. F. Schell, petitioned Judge O'Rourke for the removal of his client from the county jail to the home in Lakeside. In support of this application for removal Mr. Harris offered the testimony of Drs. W. P. Whery, A. J. Boswell and W. W. Barnett as to his physical condition.

Dr. Whery, the regular attending physician, testified that Mr. Schell was ill with gastric catarrh and his condition was such as to make his confinement in jail very dangerous. His patient has grown much worse since his confinement, and while he would not say that he could not get well in jail, he believed continued confinement would retard his recovery.

Dr. Boswell examined Mr. Schell this morning and found him to be a very sick man. He agreed with Mr. Whery as to the danger of confinement. The doctor said further that the mind affected the physical condition and if Schell stayed in jail his wife must either abandon him or stay in jail, and if they were separated the results might be dangerous. He would not admit that continued confinement would result in death, but did believe it would delay recovery.

Dr. Barnett had examined the patient Thursday evening and this morning and found him very ill with gastric catarrh. In fact, Dr. Barnett believes that he is also suffering with catarrh of the intestines. He considered Mr. Schell's condition to be very dangerous and believed a mistake was made in removing him to the jail. The trip had affected him and he had grown no better during confinement. The doctor said that removal might again affect the prisoner's physical condition, but it would so relieve his mind that to take him back home was the lesser of the two evils. He would say only that his recovery would be delayed if kept locked up.

Deputy Prosecutor Thomas objected to release without bond, inasmuch as there had been no evidence offered that immediate fatal results might happen if the prisoner was not removed.

Mr. Harris made an earnest plea for the removal of the prisoner, asserting that he could not walk and it would be impossible for him to get away. He believed that unless death followed the law was certain to take its course, bond or no bond.

Judge O'Rourke would not give his decision before noon, but intimated that if arrangements were made to care for Schell at home without cost to the county he could be taken there.

Judge O'Rourke and Sheriff Melching consulted at noon and the judge agreed to make the order for the removal of Schell to his home provided he could be guarded without cost to the county. Attorney Harris says that these arrangements can be made and it is probable that Schell will be taken back to his home this evening.

ICE PLANT SOLD.

Bought in by John W. White for the Bondholders.

Receiver C. R. Higgins this afternoon sold the Artificial Ice plant at receivers' sale. There was only one bid, that of John W. White, who bid on the plant for the bondholders and it was "knocked down" to him. There will probably be a new company organized and the plant will continue to operate with Mr. Higgins as manager.

BAND IS NO MORE.

First Regiment Organization Has Formally Disbanded.

The First Regiment band, at one time one of Fort Wayne's most prominent musical organizations, formally passed out of existence last evening, when the stockholders of the concern met and sold the entire outfit of instruments to Joseph Breilmaier, who lives in the west end of the city. The First Regiment band was organized about twelve years ago, through the efforts of Harry Achenbach and perhaps a few other enthusiastic musicians, and for many years maintained a high record as a first-class musical organization. For a number of years it was connected with the light artillery of the Indiana National guard, but it lost a number of prominent members by their removal from the city, and was unable to suitably fill the vacancies. Last evening the six stockholders, Messrs. Joseph Breilmaier, John Shaffer, Harry Tarman, E. A. Gillett, Frank Thompson and W. D. Kyle, concluded to dispose of the property as before stated. The last public appearance of the band was upon the departure of the soldiers for Indianapolis last spring.

CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ailment.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an impression, more or less, of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better.

In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential.

Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., she offers sick women her advice without charge.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a wellspring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more. I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken seven bottles of it, and am entirely cured."

Mrs. JOHN FOREMAN, 26 N. Woodbury Ave., Baltimore, Md.

The above letter from Mrs. Foreman is only one of thousands.

SENSITIVE WOMAN.

There is a wonderful little tropical plant, the mimosa or sensitive plant as it is called.

The curious thing about it is that if you pinch any part of the root or of the stem, all the delicate little branches and fragile leaves will curl up and shrink together as if they had been blighted with a sudden frost.

Woman's delicate and sensitive organism is remarkably like this little plant.

If the very roots of a woman's life are injured or diseased, her whole being suffers, both physical and mental.

She shrinks within herself and covers up her sufferings enduring all in silence as best she may.

"My son's wife had been for years a great sufferer, all broken down and very weak and nervous," says Mrs. E. J. White, of Stony Creek, Warren Co., N. Y.

"She was troubled with all the pains and aches one would expect to find in a woman of her age. She tried everything she heard of, but to no avail. The doctors said she could not live to have another child as she came out of her many times. She tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did wonders for her."

"This spring she had a nice boy weighing eleven pounds. She got through before we could get anyone there. I was afraid she would not live. We cried for joy when we saw how nicely she got along. I cannot say enough in praise of your 'Favorite Prescription.' I never saw a recommendation of a medicine before. I hope all women will try it. May God bless you for the good you have done."

Any woman may write to R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., in absolute confidence. Her communication will be kept strictly confidential and she will receive sound, professional, fatherly advice (in a plain sealed envelope) free of charge.

POWER MADE

THE DECISION

Hot Telegrams Sent to the President.

GLASSCOCK IS BACK.

Believes That Carney Will Stay Here.

The Kokomos Were Shut Out Without an Effort--Whisen's Fine Twirling.

The Fort Wayne management is much displeased at the decision of President Power in the Carney matter, and have been advised by all posted authorities that the Interstate president did not decide in accordance with base ball law.

Director Mautner telegraphed to Nick Young yesterday asking him if he had decided the Carney matter. Receiving no answer he telegraphed again at 7 p. m.

At midnight he received a telegram stating that Mr. Young would answer officially this morning.

Mr. Mautner also telegraphed Mr. Power to learn whether the national board had made the decision or whether it was Mr. Power's own finding.

Mr. Power telegraphed that he had submitted the matter to the board of arbitration before making the decision.

Mr. Mautner pressed him for a straight reply and at noon today received another telegram in which President Power admitted that he made the decision and that the Fort Wayne club could appeal if it so desired.

This indicates that the National board of arbitration did not decide the case, but that the decision was made by Mr. Power.

The Fort Wayne management were amazed at the decision in the first place and they assert now that they are not pleased with what they call Mr. Power's misrepresentation.

Mr. Mautner says he does not doubt that Fort Wayne will retain Carney and the arbitration board has been asked to decide immediately.

KOKOMOS SHUT OUT.

The Kokomos came to Fort Wayne yesterday swelled with pride at the recent defeats they had administered to Grand Rapids, Buffalo, Elwood and some of the other teams who would be easy victims for Fort Wayne. And they really believed before the game commenced that they had a chance to win. They knew better now.

Whisen was in the points for Fort Wayne and pitched even a more effective game than he did against the Buffalos. In the Buffalo game two clean singles were made off his delivery, while yesterday the Kokomos were credited with two very scratchy singles. Neither of them went out of the diamond. One was hit hard at Whisen on the bound and he couldn't recover in time to throw to first base and the other was a hot one over second which Hollingsworth stopped with his left, but couldn't pick up in time to throw the runner out at first.

Bergen gave him excellent support and after one or two of the Kokomos were nailed at second on pretty throws they were satisfied when they reached first to remain glued to the bag.

Rapp was on third base and created a favorable impression with the fans. He is very fast on his feet, covers a great deal of territory and goes after the ball with his hands. When he gets it he seems to hand it over to first base. He gets the ball away much quicker than did Charley Babb, but the throw, of course, could be no more certain. If Rapp can hit a little and field like he has shown in practice and the one game he participated in, McDonough, C. A. Smith and Billy Niles must look out for their laurels.

Kuehne played first instead of Glasscock and accepted all chances but one. Altogether the game was a good one to the "fans," because it showed that the team was working together and would always be able to make a fight for the games.

Only once did the Kokomos get a man as far as third. That was "Kid" Fear, who caught Hemming in the days of the old Indiana league. He was on second and a man on first. A grounder to Hollingsworth resulted in a double play, but Fear reached third. He trotted to first on a grounder near first base. It was foul and he walked back. The batter went out and all the chance Kokomo had to get a run was lost. Score:

BASE BALL NOTES.

Tim Flood is as fine a ball player as there is in the Interstate league. All that Tim needs to do is to keep his head and continue the pace he has set this spring and he will be in demand before the commencement of another season. His work at second yesterday was fast and still he did it so easily. Glasscock, Flood, Hollingsworth and Rapp will make a stone wall infield.

That Manager Strobel has this season.

Stahl lined out another two-bagger yesterday, but although Charley Nichols was in the box the Philadelphia were bound to win and they did it easily.

Krueger, Torreyson's third baseman, was in Fort Wayne yesterday en route to Grand Rapids. Billy Crook will now have to look for another job, as Torreyson will not carry two extra infielders.

New Castle and Youngstown are having quite a "rag-chewing" match over the abilities of their teams and they make bluffs of bets ranging from $100 to $1,000. It is a sure thing if one or the other side flashes a $5 note there will be some fainting.

Carney was in a Fort Wayne uniform yesterday and it is just that kind that suits him. He ought to be allowed to wear it the entire season.

The Kokomos play Dayton to-day and to-morrow.

The first championship game at the new park will be played next Thursday afternoon with Grand Rapids, and every lover of the game in Fort Wayne should attend and show the management that they appreciate their efforts in giving this city the handiest and best base ball park in any minor league. There should be 1,200 people at the first game.

The Buckeye club will go to Toledo Sunday in a body. The members of the club will be tendered a dinner by the management of the Buckeye Brewing company.

Steve O'Connor has prepared some "roster" badges for those who attend the ball game at Toledo next Sunday. The club yell is, "Mad Hens, bah! Fort Wayne, rah! Knock 'em out, Line 'em out! Bin, bum, rah!"

Rafert, an old Fort Wayne catcher, is in the city visiting with his friends.

"Wesley and His Work" will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. J. S. Ainslie at Plymouth church Sunday evening. At intervals during the summer, Mr. Ainslie proposes to speak, on Sunday evenings, of the life and services of the great religious leaders of modern Christendom.

Mrs. M. L. Hopkins, matron of the Buffalo, N. Y., Orphans' home, is visiting her brother, the Rev. J. A. P. McGaw, D. D., of this city.

DOES IT CURE CATARRH?

One of the Seventeen Thousand Testimonials Received.

Boston, Mass., April 29.

Care of Jordan, Marsh & Co.

Dear Sir--I had Catarrh for twenty years, and the last ten years (all of which time has been passed in this great establishment) I suffered fearfully. It extended to my throat; the base of my tongue was badly affected. I frequently kept in my mouth, when awake, or some such breath purifier. I could not sleep with my mouth closed. I began using "Hymen" in December, 1895, and in five weeks I was entirely relieved--and now, after four months and no return of the disease, can say, permanently cured. I am going to ask the head of this firm, Mr. Eben D. Jordan, to endorse this statement.

ELVIRA E. B. GIBSON.

Endorsed--Eben D. Jordan.

Hymen is sold by all druggists, or sent by mail for receipt of price. Quilt, complete, $1.00. Extra bottle, 50c. It is Guaranteed to Cure.

For sale in Fort Wayne by Gross & Fellens and other druggists.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Many things of interest will take place at the association next week.

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock Mrs. Gray, of the Westminster church, will talk to the young women.

Mrs. Ewing, of Marietta, Ohio, will give a series of lectures on cooking beginning with Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 and continuing through the week.

On Tuesday evening the gymnasium classes give their closing exhibition, and on Friday night their social.

Only one more week of the membership contest. Score standing now 16--22½ in favor of the Greens. We are expecting an exciting time towards the close of the contest, as the captains--Misses Yarnelle and Chapin--are earnest, true workers, and will do all they can to have their side win.

Every Tooth that Aches

Is more shamed against than sinning. Yes, it is. And in the very essence of things perhaps that's why it aches. It makes the punishment fit the crime of tooth neglect. Just take counsel from the fact that great toothaches from little cavities grow--and from the fact that we all tooth aches, preventing toothaches, can often save aching teeth in the same way for years of future usefulness; and can always and the earthly aches of teeth that can't be saved by extracting them by easy modern methods without pain.

It may take another drubbing or two to teach the Filipinos that the way to quit fighting is to quit.

Crocker has left the country, the George case is ended and the Filipines are ready to lay down. About the only fellow who can keep himself in a state of disturbance is the base ball fan.

Mr. Crocker has told what he thinks of Mr. Bryan and it is in order for Mr. Bryan to say what he thinks of Mr. Crocker. Perhaps, however, Mr. Bryan does not think of Mr. Crocker at all, which would answer very much better.

British newspapers are congratulating the United States on the kind of soldiers that have been sent to the Philippines. Well, they are first-rate fighting men and the beauty of the matter is that there are millions of the same kind of men at home who can play the military game with as much stubborn perfection when there is occasion.

We would again respectfully call the attention of the board of public works to the need of considerable improvements about the flowing well at Swinney park. A pavilion ought to be erected there during the coming month. It would greatly enhance the beauty of the park,
vastly increase its attractiveness
and be a source of pleasure and satisfaction to thousands. There ought to be no extended delay.

ADMIRAL KATZ, who has been detailed on a very ticklish job in the Samoan islands wrote a letter.
He wrote it to a woman. He unbosomed his mind in a very frank,
not to say free and easy manner
about the size of himself in his present position, mentioned the Germans in a manner as candid and then posted his epistle. It was duly received and promptly made public.
It won't cause a war, nor even strain the relations of the United States with Germany, but in view of Captain Coghlan's recent post-prandial efforts it is apt to excite some curiosity abroad to know if one of the functions of the American naval officer is not to out-work
for the diplomats.

The trial of Mrs. George for the murder of George Saxton at Canton, Ohio, has issued in the acquittal of the woman. The case was common in all respects and would have attracted no attention but for the fact the victim of a wronged woman's vengeance was a brother of the wife of the president of the United States. The verdict of the jury will not unsettle the conviction universal in the minds of all who have given the affair attention that Saxton met his death at the hands of the woman across whose pathway he stepped and the car-ent of whose life he changed. He lured the woman from her husband who, being sensible of his wife's defect got rid of her as he would a balky horse. He secured a divorce and being a elod compromised his honor by accepting from the man who defiled his home pay in money for the wrong. It was not so easy for Saxton to settle with the woman, who seems to have gone a good way in trusting him. He shook her off with the resolve that he would clear out and be a better man, leaving her to get up or sink lower as she best might. The verdict just rendered emphasizes the well known difficulty encountered in attempting to convict the woman who kills her betrayer. So far do men pay tribute to woman's faith in man. But, in so far as it obscures the earlier and perhaps the greater sin of the woman who betrays her husband, it is not sala-tary. Back of the whole range of the question is the unchangeable fact that hell is born in any home
when first it is cursed by the lech-ery of a husband or the scarlet sin of a wife.

UNDERSTANDING NOT CLEAR.
The Filipinos evidently have not come to a full understanding of this government's purpose in fighting them. The insurgents and their leaders have been fought almost to a standstill. So rapid has been the game that resources which would have answered for a year's campaign against the Spanish are about exhausted. They are worn out, discouraged and defeated. Nothing remains but to surrender, be annihilated or retreat to the fastnesses of the hills. Yet they are seeking some sort of nominal recognition of their so called government; their congress.

General Otis very wisely refused to treat respecting a cessation of hostilities on any ground that presented the existence of any authority in the islands save the government of the United States. Aguinaldo is the Filipino government. His congress is his satellites. Under duress of his power as dictator, a few Filipinos of influence and some thousands of misguided natives composing the army are clinging to the pretense of being the Philippine populace. They are tired of the fighting and anxious to quit, but they fear the sword of their leader.

If the negotiations already begun come to naught, then the war will go on until the rebels are subdued.
As an aggressive force Aguinaldo's army cannot hold out much longer.
Slowly the line is closing him in where neither food nor munitions can reach him. To impress upon the insurgents the fact that this government is not in the Philippines to merely fight for peace, but to establish its authority supreme for the present at least, it may be necessary to continue the drubbing

so soundly administered during the past two months. It is more than ever evident, however, that it will not take much more campaigning to make the lesson of the war clear to the Filipino vision and salutary to the Filipino mind. The stern processes of war are working a change that once effected will be permanent,
and permanent because the restoration of peace will be followed by good government, prosperity and the beneficence of a modern civilization different from anything it was in the power of Spanish genius to confer.

With His Handsome Dis-

In the display window of the B.
R. Noll drug store, 10 East Columbia street, is one of the most attractive displays ever shown in Fort Wayne. The window was arranged by Will H. Noll and is entered in competition for the $1,000 prize offered by the Paine Colery Compound people for the best arranged window. The decorations consist of lattice work ornamented by Colery Compound advertising matter; in center arch is a large hand holding aloft a bottle of Paine's Colery Compound; in the right hand arch is a church; while in the left hand is a case containing United States treasury notes of large denomination;
the three representing the three great powers of earth, namely:
the physical power, the moral power and the financial power.

THE CONVICTION OF ALGER.

(Harper's Weekly.)

The investigation of the beef scandal before the army court of inquiry has established in the public mind
the substantial truth of the charges which were brought. It has been conclusively demonstrated that bad beef was served to our soldiers in great quantities. It has been astively proved that there was the gross lack of supervision on the part of those officials of the war department whose business it was to see that only good meat was provided.
Radical reform in the war department is absolutely essential.
Methods and men alike must be changed before public confidence can be re-established. Legislation, as well as executive action, will be necessary to work the revolution that is demanded. Fortunately, political considerations in this case sustain the demand for reform. The war department is the weak spot in the McKinley administration. Algerism and Eaganism have become crying scandals. The case of Eagan has shown the hopelessness of paltering with such scandals. The in-judged clemency of the president has reacted upon the administration and upon the party responsible for it. The continuance of Alger at the head of the war department is more than a reproach. It is a serious handicap upon the party which the shrewder leaders see that it cannot afford to carry in the race for the fall elections.

GAVE A RECITAL.

An enjoyable recital was given at Kimball hall last evening by the pupils who have been receiving musical instruction under Miss Pauline Schust. The program was a most excellent one and the young people executed the numbers in a pleasing manner that gave gratifying evidence of their progress, and was at the same time a testimonial of Miss Schust's ability as an instructor. It was the third annual program given under Miss Schust's direction, and was highly complimented by those who were present. The numbers included both vocal and instrumental selections, and brought into use an extended range of versatility upon the part of the young musicians.

A CARD TO PATRONS

Announcing Their Readiness for Business.

President Coffin and Other Officials Will Arrive Here

Tonight.

President Coffin, First Vice President Green, Attorney Parsons and Expert Accountant Knoll, of the General Electric company, will arrive in the city this evening and spend several days here getting the Fort Wayne branch of the industry in shape for business. The following circular letter, which is now in the hands of the printer and which explains itself, will be issued next Monday:

"FORT WAYNE, Ind., May 1, '99.
"To Our Customers, Friends and the Public: Notice is hereby given that the property of the Fort Wayne Electric corporation has been sold, and a new company formed to perpetuate the business of the manufacture and sale of electrical machinery and apparatus under the 'Wood' patents at Fort Wayne. This company will be known as the Fort Wayne Electric Manufacturing company and its object is to continue the manufacture of the 'Wood' systems of arc, alternating current and direct current apparatus.

"Not only will the high standard of excellence attained by the systems be maintained, but improvements will be made from time to time as experience may suggest. A sufficient stock will always be kept on hand so that orders for apparatus and supplies can be filled without delay.

"Thanking you for past favors, and assuring you that any future business will receive prompt and careful attention, we are

"Yours very truly,
"FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.,
"By James J. Wood,
"Electrician and Gen. Supr."

In an interview this morning, Superintendent Wood said: "THE SENTINEL can announce to the public that the electric works will soon be employing the largest force in its history. If we cannot sell enough of my machines to keep things moving, we will build some of a different pattern, the models for which will be sent here from Schenectady, where the General company's main works are located."

Next Monday the work of overhauling the patterns at the works will be taken up and pushed rapidly along. All the most important wooden patterns will be rebuilt out of brass and this will make considerable work for the foundry department.

Eight Hours a Day.

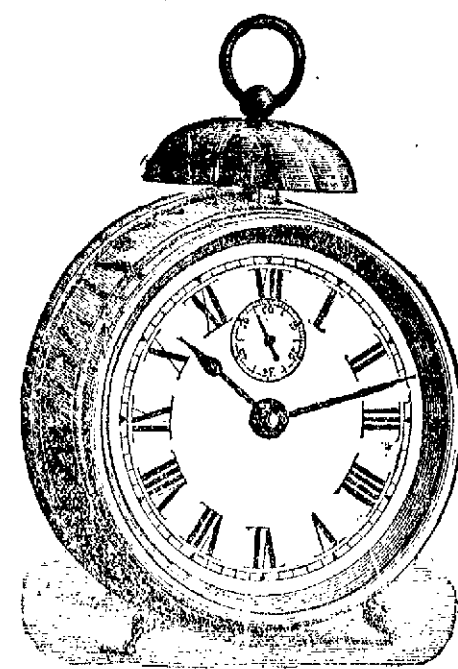

Conductors, switchmen and brakemen employed in the Boston yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford have been notified by the management that henceforth they will be required to work only eight hours a day, instead of ten. This change is made without reduction in wages and without any friction between the employers and employees. The road management had a number of consultations with the employees about the matter before the change was announced. In many instances wages were restored to their former amount. Other employees on the road feel confident that they also will be given a shorter workday as soon as the officials can adjust the system for continuing the work without interruption. Members of the Freight Handlers' union who are employed by this company have taken initiative measures to obtain the eight-hour day. This movement is not alone for the freight men who work on the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

An Aged Conductor Dead.

William H. Line was buried at Alliance, Ohio, yesterday. The deceased was one of the oldest conductors in the employ of the Pennsylvania company. Two years ago a trunk fell off a truck on the depot platform at Mansfield and injured Mr. Line severely and since that time he has been unable to work. For forty-four years he was employed on the eastern division of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, ran in and out of Crestline, and was known to all the railway men on the western division who run into Crestline.

A Boilermaker's Long Service.

Thirty years ago today John T. Leach took a position as boiler-maker in the Pittsburgh shops, where he has been employed continuously ever since. Mr. Leach is an Englishman, coming to America in 1868.

On the first of November of that year he arrived in Fort Wayne and immediately went to work in the boiler shop of McLaughlin & Keys, which was located on Chicago street. He remained there until the 29th of April the following year, when he resigned to take a position in the Pittsburgh shops. Mr. Leach is quite popular with his fellow men and was the western division's member of the advisory board of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief union several years, an office that is filled by election by the members themselves.

Received Its Engines.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana company has received the four large passenger engines ordered from the Baldwin works some time ago. These are the finest locomotives ever placed in service on that road. They will haul the "Northland Vestibule," a limited train running between Cincinnati and Mackinaw, which will also be the first train in the service of the company.

Three Big Damage Suits.

The Nickel Plate will be asked to pay to the relatives of the deceased the sum of $30,000 for the killing of George Sberburn, his wife and a little son, which occurred at Kinzie, Ind., August 21, 1897. The cases will be tried in the Whitley circuit courts, a change of venue from Kosciusko having been granted. The best of legal talent has been engaged by both parties and the contest will be fierce and long.

A Growing Brotherhood.

At its meeting tomorrow morning, the local branch of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will initiate a class of eight. The lodge has just completed the work of repainting, carpeting and furnishing its rooms and now has one of the prettiest halls in the city. Next week, Charles A. Scott, who has been chosen to represent the local branch at the national convention, will leave for New Orleans, where the convention will convene May 8th and continue in session about two weeks.

General and Personal.

C. F. Lenhart and John Walker, machinists, have secured employment in the Wabash shops. Superintendent J. B. Barnes, of Springfield, Ill., is in the city on business for the Wabash company.

The Ohio Falls Car works, at Jeffersonville, have contracts on hand to keep them busy until September.

Fireman Frank Alderman has resumed his duties on the Nickel Plate, after a short visit with friends in Ohio.

Frank Sargeant, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, has gone to the Pacific coast, to be absent a month.

Forty-two cars of new steel rails, bound for the northern division of the Grand Rapids and Indiana road, passed through this city this morning.

Walter Dunn and H. Meyers were yesterday given employment in the machine department at the works of the Western Gas Construction company.

The office of the Western Gas Construction company has received new freecoring and varnishing internally and presents a bright and pleasant appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Balzer and baby have returned from Rochester, Ind. They spent a week there with the lady's parents. Mr. Balzer is a Nickel Plate engineer.

Will Gould, machinist at the Bass works, has taken a thirty days' vacation and this evening will leave for New York to visit his brothers, Carroll and James Gould.

General Manager L. F. Loree, of the Pennsylvania lines, was on No. 18 this morning, en route to his home in Pittsburgh. He is accompanied by Superintendent J. B. McKim.

The Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern has placed a contract with Barney & Smith, of Dayton, Ohio, for the building of two postal, four baggage cars, three coaches, five accommodation, passenger and baggage and two combination dining, parlor and observation cars.

He didn't stop for supper; instead he seized the bicycle and led it to the street where he mounted it and immediately took a "header," not having yet learned the art of riding "one of the pesky things."

[Copyright, 1899, by D. M. Stearns.] 15. "If ye love Me, keep My commandments." In verses 21, 23, also of this lesson, we have the keeping of His word or commandments as the evidence of our love to Him, are taught the necessity of having His word dwelling richly in us (Col. iii, 16) if we would prove that we do love Him. We do not think it too much to read quite a long letter to "some whom we truly love" or to read it many times, but many Christians find it tiresome to read even a chapter from the word of God, and to read a whole book would be an unbearable task.

16. "And I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another comforter, that He may abide with you forever." In chapter xiv, 16, He is called the Spirit of Truth, and as such He testifies of Christ. In chapter xvi, 7-15, the comforters of sin, all truth and glorify Christ by showing unto us things to come, the things that are Christ's. He also makes intercession in us, while Christ at God's right hand makes intercession for us (Rom. viii, 26, 34).

17. "He dwelleth with you and shall be in you." Ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you (1 Cor. iii, 16). When once He comes to dwell in us, as He does when we are born again, He never leaves us, even though we often grieve Him. He loves to the end. But how much better we might know Him if we could feel His love and how much He would tell us if we would yield fully to Him and cease to grieve Him by our worldly ways and un-Christ-like conduct!

18. "I will not leave you comfortless; for I will come to you." He will surely come again, and every sorrow shall be forgotten in that bright morning of His return when we shall see and share His glory, and until He does come the comforter will prove Himself a real comforter to all who are willing to receive Him heartily.

19. "Ye shall have Him, and the Father of me, and the Father of all comfort (1 John i, 3, 4).

20. "A little while, and the world seeth Me no more, but ye see Me, because I live yet." This life is but a sojourn. He is able to save ourselves because He ever liveth (Heb. vi, 25, margin). He is our life, and as the one who was dead, but is alive for evermore, having the keys of life and death, He says unto us, "Fear not" (Rev. i, 17, 18). As the moon reflects upon us the light of the sun after he has gone from our sight, because she still sees him, so we ever see Jesus by faith should ever reflect His light.

21. "At that day ye shall know that I am in My Father and ye in Me, and I in you." Beloved, now are we the children of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is, and this hope set on Him is very purifying (1 John iii, 2, 3). Then our whole spirit, soul and body will be hushed at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ (1 Thess. ii, 19, N. Y.). May Christ be more fully formed in us now to the glory of God (Gal. iv, 19).

22. "He that hath My commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me, and he that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him." A special love to Christ receives special love from the Father and special manifestations of Christ from Himself. The Lord always reveals Himself to His people by His word and Spirit, even as He did to Samuel (1 Sam. iii, 21). 23. "Whoever loveth Me, he that loveth Me, shall love My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him." This is the love of the world? This question is from the other Jesus, not Jesus Christ. He seems to say, if we can see only the outward, like Nicodemus and the woman at the well. He did not understand as yet the spiritual things seen only by spiritual people, the revelation of the heart of God to the heart of man. See 1 Cor. ii, 14, 15.

24. "Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love Me, he will keep My words, and My Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make Our abode with him." In verse 17 He said that the Spirit would dwell in us, but now He adds that both the Father and Himself would come, and make their abode in those who love and keep His word. The word "abode" in this verse is just the same as the word "mansions" in verse 2, a little Greek noun of four letters and not used anywhere but in these two verses. How wonderful that these bodies of ours may become mansions in which the Father, Son and Holy Spirit will condescend to dwell! 25. "He that loveth Me, he that loveth Me, shall love My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him." He says that the words are not His, but the Father's which ye hear in Me, but the Father's which ye hear in Me, but the Father's which ye hear in Me. How often He tells us that the words are not His, but the Father's (Verse 10; chapter xii, 49). From the age of 12, if not before, He was about His Father's business (Luke ii, 49), and in all His life the Father spoke and wrought through Him. He was a vessel wholly for God, and He asks us to present our bodies as a living sacrifice (Rom. xii, 1).

26. "These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you." These were some of the very last words ever He left them, and His whole heart's desire must have gone out to them in these words. He longed to have them know Himself and His Father better, that they might be full of joy, even His own joy, and in Him have peace (xv, 11; xvi, 21, 23; xvii, 13). Yet He knew that only by the Spirit could they fully understand, and so He said that it was better for Him to go, that the Spirit might come and open their eyes and convince them (xvi, 7, 8).

27. "He shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance, whichsoever I have said unto you." This is the word of the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, and He said, "Whom the Father will send in My name." Therefore the Spirit is here wholly on His business, and when we are willing to be wholly on His business the Spirit will surely fill us. As the disciples thought of the very many things He had said to them and probably longed to recall every word what a comfort this assurance must have been!

28. "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." This is the word of the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, and He said, "Whom the Father will send in My name." Therefore the Spirit is here wholly on His business, and when we are willing to be wholly on His business the Spirit will surely fill us. As the disciples thought of the very many things He had said to them and probably longed to recall every word what a comfort this assurance must have been!

29. "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." This is the word of the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, and He said, "Whom the Father will send in My name." Therefore the Spirit is here wholly on His business, and when we are willing to be wholly on His business the Spirit will surely fill us. As the disciples thought of the very many things He had said to them and probably longed to recall every word what a comfort this assurance must have been!

THE EYE OF GOD.

Down on a yellow pool a ray
Of moonlight shone one summer night;
The reptiles in its depths at play
Shrank from the pure, bright ray of light.
Deep in the darkness of their lair
They hid from the moon's light;
Like guilty souls they could not bear
The eye of God's clear, searching glow.

The pool, untroubled, settled clear
The moon shone on its surface bright—
When God looks in our hearts, with fear
Our evil thoughts thus shrink from sight.

THE SILENCE OF CHRIST.

How Jesus Met the False Accusations of His Enemies—His Common Sense.

One of the notable characteristics of Christ was His silence under the charges of His enemies. He rarely replied to them. They sneered at Him as a bastard; He received the sneer in silence. They accused Him of being a glutton and a winebibber; He did not reply to the charge even when He referred to it, except by saying that neither asceticism nor social fellowship was imputed from malice. Before the court of Caiaphas He answered nothing to all the charges brought against Him; He left him to pursue his way unopposed, and aggravated it by His apparent indifference. Brought before Pilate, when questioned by the perplexed judge He answered frankly and fully; but when the judge had pronounced his prisoner innocent and yet hesitated whether to release Him or no, He refused any longer to plead for Himself. He kept absolute silence. Once, we believe only once, did He make answer to accusations of enemies; it was when the Pharisees charged Him with casting out devils by Beelzebub, the prince of devils; and then the defense was less of Himself than of the work of God wrought through Him.

In this His silence under malicious false reports Christ showed that practical common sense which characterized His whole life, and relates the charge of fanaticism sometimes brought against Him. No defense is proof against malice; no explanation will suffice to correct intentional misreport. For effect of self-defense an impartial tribunal is indispensable. The man who attempts to stay the flight of an irresponsible scandal only gives it wings by his endeavor; and he who writes to the press to correct a mis-report generally only succeeds in calling additional attention to it. If there is some truth in the unjust rumor, the accused is the last person to discriminate between the truth and the falsehood; if there is no truth in it, the character of the accused is his best defense from the aspersion. There is an old motto: He who is his own lawyer has a fool for a client. It is of wide application. He who is smarting under an unjust accusation is by that very fact unfitted to conduct a defense against it. He cannot understand how the facts will seem to others. He would better leave his friends to defend him. If he has no loyal friends, there is something wrong with himself, and he will do well to spend his time in discovering what that wrong in himself is rather than to misspend it in a futile self-defense.

Never is the motto more applicable: Speech is silver, but silence is golden. Then when one is suffering under false accusation. The silence of Christ is an example to be followed.—N. Y. Outlook.

USING OUR TALENTS RIGHT.

This Is of Higher Consideration Than the Question of Their Greatness.

It does not matter so much about the greatness of our talents as the way in which we use them. People with very inferior talents sometimes accomplish better work in the world than others possessing brilliant attainments in certain lines of intellectual power. Talents themselves amount to but little unless put into action with a purpose to make the most of them in the right way. Then they become a power for good and shine out in beauty and brightness. Two young men seemed to possess a great talent for oratory, and both wanted to make the most of their talents. One went into the ministry, the other upon the stage. The one became an eloquent preacher who won many to Christ; the other, a comic impersonator whose calling led him into temptation which was his ruin. Thus it is with thousands.

Then let us use our talents as a precious gift from God and for His glory. If we employ them in selfish ways, the precious gold will turn to dross and become useless. If we neglect them, the rust and mildew will gather upon the bright jewels, and they will be tarnished forever. If we give them into the keeping of evil, the results will be more disastrous still, for they will be productive of sin instead of bearing precious fruit. Let us keep the precious bright that God has given us.—Mrs. M. A. Holt, in Christian Work.

To hear well, we must learn how to be deaf. This is almost as necessary as the quick ear. The trained musician can pick out the single instrument in the orchestra of 50, or the single voice in the chorus of four-score, and being deaf to all the others, can follow that one. The trained telegrapher will be deaf to all the rush and roar of a railroad yard, or of a crowded station, and hear just that single soft click whose word it is his place to know. So accurate spiritual hearing predicates a certain sturdy deafness. Many voices plead within; the world, the flesh, and the devil are never still; but the trained spirit hears from amidst them all the still small voice of God. He learns to be deaf to the clamor of these others. With our petitions that we be given ears to hear, let us mingle a prayer tain wise pleading that we may be given a measure of deafness, having which we shall hear more clearly.—S. S. Times.

Fatalism.

The doctrine of fatalism, teaching that men and women are not morally responsible for their deeds, would work more harm if generally accepted than could be done by an epidemic of cholera or smallpox.—Rev. Dr. Dille.

Death.

Death is not the end. Death is the unfettering of the soul. The life here is the continuation of the life here, only enlarged, enriched, ennobled.—Rev. J. F. Carson.

LIGHT.

An Object Lesson Which Shows How Christian Influence Is Spread Abroad in the World.

A traveler once described to me an interesting scene witnessed by him in some eastern churches. It was a great building, thronged with thousands of worshippers pilgrims who had gathered from many distant places, to be present at these services. The great building was shrouded in darkness, but each person in his hand an unlighted candle. One tiny candle was burning, sending its timid beam of light out into the darkness feebly, like the faint ray of some far off star. It deepened and intensified rather than relieved the gloom. At a given signal, every candle was to be lighted as quickly as possible from the one already burning. The signal was given. A dozen hands reached forth instantly and caught the light from the one tiny source. These almost instantly passed it on to dozens and hundreds and thousands more. In an incredibly brief space of time the flame flashed across that great audience, the thousands of candles were blazing, and that immense building seemed to be one surging sea of light.

What an object lesson! What a picture of what this world is, of what it may become! Why is not the light which flashed out from Bethlehem and from Calvary so long ago not burning now in every heart, the whole wide world around?

"Ye are the light of the world," said Christ. Let that light shine. Let its fire kindle upon the next heart and that upon the next—and also flash on and on until every hamlet and village and city and state and nation and continent, and the whole world, shall be bright with the radiance of Him whose "life is the light of men."—Christian Work.

NO WASTE IN NATURE.

God in His Divine Economy Teaches Us How to Use Our Time and Talents.

"Nature is a rigid economist. In her household there is no waste. Everything is utilized to the utmost. The decay of rock forms the soil of plants; and the decay of plants forms the mold in which future plants will grow." What looks like waste, in the ashes of a fire, in the decay of a plant, in the death of an animal, is not waste, but only change. Nothing is lost. This lesson which nature teaches is being turned to account to-day in the realm of manufactures. Substances which once were thrown away as useless are converted into material that yields large profit. The by-products, as they are called, of various substances, are of almost as much value as the principal product. In some instances they are of even greater value. What was once discarded as refuse in a gas-works now yields a large variety of useful products. The representative of a large dressed-beef firm is reported as saying that the by-products of a steer are worth more than the beef obtained from the animal. Aniline dyes are obtained from coal tar. Paper can be made from the fiber of sugar cane. From the sage brush of the plains, and from stable straw, fortunes await the men who can suggest processes for turning waste into by-products. A similar economy in the general conduct of life would insure returns equally rich after their kind. The by-products which might be obtained from moments and hours that now go to waste might equal in value the products of what we call our working hours.—Baptist Union.

GOING ALONE.

We Learn by the Rough Experiences of Life That Man Is Not Self-Sufficient.

"We want to go my lone," said a little tot, refusing her father's proffered hand as she made her way painfully along over the slippery sidewalk. In a moment she had fallen, but she picked herself up, repeating the words: "We want to go my lone." Again she fell. This time her lips quivered as she rose, but to her father's quivers: "Daughter, take hold of papa's hand," she only replied as before: "We want to go my lone."

This was repeated several times, the faltering steps becoming more and more bewildered and halting. Finally, after an unusually severe fall, she came back to her father, and, without a word, put her little hand in his big, strong one, looking up into his face with fearful yet trusting eyes. At last she was safe. The way was easy. With that sustaining arm she knew that all danger was past.

We think, perhaps, in the blind confidence and ignorance of youth, that our own strength is sufficient. We strive to forge ahead, but falter and fall by the way. At last it is borne in upon our saddened, weary souls that we need a higher strength, a larger and finer intelligence. Then it is that, like the little child, we come back to our Father, and with trusting faith place our hand in His. Then it is that we know for the first time what security and true guidance is.—S. S. Times.

It's a bad bargain to exchange the heavenly for the earthly, the eternal for the things that perish with their using, for what shall it profit a man "if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"—Rev. C. S. Mason.

In the mud rush for riches it is well to remember occasionally that property all lies on the same planet with the grave, and is left here. Character is the only thing that links man to the other world, and will be carried on with him.—Watelman.

Our lives should be in the line of our prayers. When we say: "Lead us not into temptation," we should not go out into the way of sinners, or sit in the seat of the scornful. Prayer for guidance is a promise on our part that we will follow our guide.—United Presbyterian.

A LESSON FROM LIFE.

Dr. Talmage Eulogizes the Late Justice Stephen J. Field.

Religious Training Laid the Foundation of His Character—The Great Divine's Tribute to a Departed Friend.

(Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1899)
Washington, April 23.

One of the most notable characters of our time is the subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse, and the lessons drawn are inspiring. Text, 2 Samuel, 3:38: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

Here is a plumed eulogist, followed by King David and a funeral oration which he delivers at the tomb. Concerning Abner, the great, David weeps out the text. More appropriately than when originally uttered we may now utter this resounding lamentation: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

It was 30 minutes after six, the exact hour of the sunset of the Sabbath day, and while the evening lights were being kindled, that the soul of Stephen J. Field, the lawyer, the judge, the patriot, the statesman, the Christian, ascended. It was sundown in the home on yonder Capitol hill, as it was sundown on all the surrounding hills, but in both cases the sun set to be followed by a glorious sunrise. Hear the "Easter anthems still lingering in the air, "The trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall rise."

Our departed friend came forth a boy from a minister's home in New England. He knelt with father and mother at morning and evening prayer, learned from maternal lips lessons of piety which lasted him and controlled him amid all the varied and exciting scenes of a lifetime and helped him to die in peace an octogenarian. Blot out from American history the names of those ministers' sons who have done honor to judicial bench and commercial circle and national legislature and presidential chair, and you would obliterate many of the grandest chapters of that history. It is no small advantage to have started from a home where God is honored and the subject of a world's emancipation from sin and sorrow under constant discussion. The Ten Commandments, which are the foundation of all good law—Roman law, German law, English law, American law—are the best foundation upon which to build character, and those which the boy, Stephen J. Field, so often heard in the parsonage at Stockbridge were his guidance when, a half century after, as a crowned justice of the supreme court of the United States, he unrolled his opinions. Bibles, hymn books, catechisms, family prayers, atmosphere sanctified, are good surroundings for boys and girls to start from, and if our later ideas of religion and Sabbath days and home training produce as splendid men and women as the much-decried Puritanic Sabbath and Puritanic teachings have produced it will be a matter of congratulation and thanksgiving.

Do not pass by the fact that I have not yet seen emphasized that Stephen J. Field was a minister's son. Notwithstanding that there are conspicuous exceptions to the rule—and the exceptions have built up a stereotyped deflection on the subject—statistics plain and undeniable prove that a larger proportion of ministers' sons turn out well than are to be found in any other genealogical table. Let all the parsons of all denominations of Christians where children are growing up take the consolation. See the star of hope pointing down to that manger!

Notice also that our departed friend was a member of a royal family. There were no crowns or scepters or thrones in that ancestral line, but the family of the Fields, like the family of the New York Princes, like the family of the Princeton Alexanders, like a score of families that I might mention, if it were best to mention them, were "the children of the King," and had put on their honors brighter than crowns and wielded influence longer and wider than scepters. That family of Fields traces on honorable lineage back 800 years to Hubertus de la Feld, condottiero of William the Conqueror. Let us thank God for such families, generation after generation on the side of that which is right and good. Four sons of that country minister, known the world over for extraordinary usefulness in their spheres, legal, commercial, literary and theological, and a daughter, the mother of one of the associate justices of the supreme court. Such families counterbalance for good those families all wrong from generation to generation—families that stand for wealth, unrighteously got and stingily kept or wickedly squandered; families that stand for fraud or impurity or malevolence; family names that immediately come to every mind, though through sense of propriety they do not come to the lip. The name of Field will survive centuries and be a synonym for religion, for great jurisprudence, for able Christian journalism, as the names of the Pharaohs and the Caesars stand for cruelty and oppression and vice.

While all parents cannot aspire to have such conspicuous households as the one the name of whose son we now celebrate, all parents may by fidelity in prayer and holy example have their sons and daughters become kings and queens unto God, to reign forever and ever. But the work has already been done, and I could go through this country and find a thousand households which have by the grace of God and blessing upon paternal and maternal excellence become the royal families of America.

Let young men beware lest they by their behavior blot such family records with some misdeed. We can all think of households the names of which meant everything honorable and consecrated for a long while, but by the deed of one son sacrificed, disgraced and blasted. Look out how you rob your consecrated ancestry of the name they handed to you unsullied! Better as trustee to that name add something worthy. Do something to honor the old homestead, whether a mountain cabin or a city mansion or a country parsonage.

Rev. David Dudley Field, though 32

years passed upward, is honored to-day by the Christian life, the service, the death of his son Stephen.

Among the most absorbing books of the Bible is the book of Kings, which again and again illustrates that though piety is not hereditary, the style of parentage has much to do with the style of descendant. It declares of King Abime: "He walked in all the sins of his father which he had done before him," and of King Ahab: "He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father Amosiah had done." We owe a debt to those who have gone before in our line as certainly as we have obligations to those who subsequently appear in the household. Not so sacred is your old father's walking staff, which you keep in his memory, or the eyeglasses through which your mother studied the Bible in her old age as the name they bore, the name which you inherited. Keep it bright, I charge you. Keep it suggestive of something elevated in character. Trample not underfoot that which to your father and mother was dearer than life itself. Defend their graves as they defended your cradle. Family coat of arms, escutcheons, ensigns armorial, lion couchant, or lion rampant, or lion combatant, may attract attention, but better than all heraldic inscription is a family name which means from generation to generation faith in God, self-sacrifice, duty performed, a life well lived and a death happily died, and a Heaven gloriously won. That was the kind of name that Justice Field augmented and adorned and perpetuated—a name honorable at the close of the eighteenth century, more honored now at the close of the nineteenth.

Notice also that our illustrious friend was great in reasonable and genial dissent. Of the 1,042 opinions he rendered none was more potent or memorable than those rendered while he was in small minority and sometimes in a minority of one. A learned and distinguished lawyer of this country said he would rather be the author of Judge Field's dissenting opinions than to be the author of the constitution of the United States. The tendency is to go with the multitude, to think what others think, to say and do what others do. Sometimes the majority are wrong, and it requires heroes to take the negative, but to do that logically and in good humor requires some elements of make up not often found in judicial dissenters or, indeed, in any class of men. There are so many people in the world opposed to everything and who display their opposition in rancorous and obnoxious ways that a Judge Field was needed to make the negative respected and genial and right. Minorities under God save the world and save the church. An unthinking and precipitate "yes" may be stopped by a righteous and heroic "no." The majority are not always right. The old Gospel hymn declares it: Numbers are no mark that men will right be found. A few were saved in Noah's ark to many millions drowned.

The Declaration of American Independence was a dissenting opinion. The Free Church of Scotland, under Chalmers and his compeers was a dissenting movement. The Bible itself, Old Testament and New Testament, is a protest against the theories that would have destroyed the world, and is a dissenting as well as a divinely inspired book. The Decalogue on Sinai repeated ten times: "Thou shalt not." For ages to come will be quoted from law books in courtrooms. Justice Field's magnificent dissenting opinions.

Notice that our ascended friend had such a character as assault and peril alone can develop. He had not come to the soft cushions of the supreme court bench stepping on cloth of gold and saluted all along the line by handclapping of applause. Country parsons do not rock their babies in satin-lined cradle or afterward send them out into the world with enough in their hand to purchase place and power. Pastors' salaries in the early part of this century hardly ever reached $700 a year. Economies that sometimes cut into the bone characterized many of the homes of the New England clergymen. The young lawyer of whom we speak today arrived in San Francisco in 1849 with only ten dollars in his pocket. Williamstown college was only introductory to a postgraduate course which our illustrious friend took while administering justice and halting ruffianism amid the mining camps of California. Oh, those "forty-niners," as they were called, through what privations, through what narrow escapes, amid what exposures they moved! Administering and executing law among outlaws never has been an easy undertaking. Among mountaineers, many of whom had no regard for human life; and where the snap of pistol and bang of gun were not unusual responses, required courage of the highest metal.

Behind a dry goods box, surrounded by tallow candles, Judge Field began his judicial career. What exciting scenes he passed through! An infernal machine was handed to him, and inside the lid of the box was pasted his decision in the Pueblo case, the decision that had balked unprincipled speculators. Ten years ago his life would have passed out had not an officer of the law shot down his assailant. It took a long training of hardship and abuse and misinterpretation and threat of violence and flash of assassin's knife to fit him for the high place where he could defy legislatures and congresses and presidents and the world when he knew he was right. Hardship is the grindstone that sharpens intellectual faculties and the sword with which to strike effectively for God and one's country.

Notice also how much our friend did for the honor of the judiciary. What momentous scenes have been witnessed in our United States supreme court, on the bench and before the bench, whether far back it held its sessions in the upper room of the exchange at New York or afterward for ten years in the cellar of yonder capitol, the place where for many years the congressional library was kept, a sepulcher where books were buried alive, the hole called by John Randolph "the cave of Trophimus." What mighty men stood before that bar, pleading in immortal eloquence on questions of national import-

Edmund Randolph and Alexander Hamilton and Finkney and Jeremiah Mason and Caleb Cushing and the weird and irresistible Rufus Choate and George Wood and Charles O'Connor and James T. Brady and Francis B. Cutting and men now living just as powerful.

How suggestive the invitation which William Wirt, the great Virginian, wrote his friend inviting him to yonder supreme courtroom: "To-morrow a week will come on the great steamboat question from New York. Emmett and Oakley on one side, Webster and myself on the other. Come down and hear it. Emmett's whole soul is in the case, and he will stretch all his powers. Oakley is said to be one of the finest logicians of the age, as much a Phocion as Emmett is a Themistocles, and Webster is as ambitious as Caesar. He will not be outdone by any man if it is in the compass of his power to avoid it. Come to Washington. It will be a combat worth witnessing." The supreme court has stood so high in England and the United States that the views of a few who have occupied that important place have not been able to disgrace it, neither the corruption of Francis Bacon, nor the cruelty of Sir George Mackenzie, nor the Sabbath desecration of Lord Castlereagh.

To that highest of all tribunals Abraham Lincoln called our friend, but he lived long enough to honor the supreme court more than it had ever honored him. For more than 34 years he sat in the presence of this nation and of all nations a model judge. Fearlessness, integrity, devotion to principle, characterized him. No bribe ever touched his hand. No profane word ever scalded his tongue. No blemish of wrong ever marred his character. Fully qualified was he to have his name associated in the history of this country with the greatest of the judiciary.

As at 12 o'clock day by day on yonder hill the gavel falls in the supreme courtroom, and it is announced that the chief justice of the United States and the associate justices are about to enter, and all counselors at the bar and all spectators rise to greet them, and the officer with the words: "Oyez, oyez, oyez!" announces that all is now ready for a hearing and exclaims: "God save the United States of America." So I wish we could in imagination gather together those who have occupied that high judicial place in this and other lands, and they might enter, and after the falling of some mighty gavel demand attention we could look upon them—Marshall, the giant of American jurisprudence, and John Jay, of whom Daniel Webster said in commemoration: "When the spotless eminence of the judicial robe fell on John Jay, it touched nothing less spotless than itself," and Rutledge and Cushing and Ellsworth and Joseph Story, called the Walter Scott of common law, and Sir Matthew Hale and Lord Eldon and Lord Tenterden and Sir James McIntosh and Mansfield and the long line of lord chancellors and the great judges from both sides of the sea, and after they had taken their places in our quickened imagination and distinguished eases of centuries which they decided might again be called on, after the assembled nations had ejaculated: "God save the United States of America," "God save Great Britain," "God save the nations."

Alh, how the law honors and sanctifies everything it touches! Natural law, Civil law, Social law, Commercial law, Common law, Moral law, Ecclesiastical law, International law. Oh, the dignity, the impressiveness, the power of law! It is the only thing before which Jehovah bows, but He bows before that, although the law is of His own making. The law! By it worlds swing. By it the fate of centuries is decided. By it all the affairs of time and all the cycles of eternity will be governed. We cannot soar so high, or sink so deep, or reach out so far, or live so long as to escape it. It is the throne on which the Almighty sits. To interpret law, what a profession! What a responsibility! What an exaltation when the judge be a Lord Jeffrey! What a benediction if he be a Chancellor Kent!

In passing let me say that for this chief tribunal of our country congress should soon provide a better place. Let some of the moneys voted for the improvement of rivers which are nothing but dry creeks and for harbors which will never have any shipping and for monuments to some people whom it is not at all important for us to remember be voted for the erection of a building worthy our United States supreme court. John Ruskin, in "Stones of Venice," calls attention to the pleasing fact that in the year 813 the doge of Venice devoted himself to putting up two great buildings—St. Mark's, for the worship of God, and a palace for the administration of justice to man. In its appreciation of what is best let 1899 be behind 813. With such granite in our quarries and such architects capable of drafting sublime structure and such magnificent sites in which to build let not another year pass before we hear the trowel ring on the corner stone of a temple to be occupied by the highest court of the land.

Have you ever realized how much God has honored law in the fact that all up and down the Bible He makes the judge a type of Himself and employs the scene of a courtroom to set forth the grandeur of the great judgment day? Book of Genesis: "Shall not the judge of all the earth do right?" Book of Deuteronomy: "The Lord shall judge His people." Book of Psalms: "God is judge Himself." Book of the Acts: "Judge of quick and dead." Book of Timothy: "The Lord is the righteous judge." Never will it be understood how God honors judges and courtrooms until the thunderbolt of the last day shall pound the opening of the great assize—the day of trial, the day of clearance, the day of doom, the day of judgment. The law of the ease on that occasion will be read, and the indictment of ten counts, which are the Ten Commandments. Justice will plead the ease against us, but our glorious advocate will plead in our behalf, for "we have an advocate with the Father—Jesus Christ, the righteous." Then the case will be decided in our clearance, as the Judge announces: "There is now, therefore, no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus." Under the crowded galleries of cloud on that last day and under the awning upholstery of a burning heaven and while the Alps and Himalayas and Mount Washington are falling flat on their faces we will be able to understand the significance of those Scripture passages which speak of God as Judge and employ the courtroom of earth as typical of the scene when all nations shall be brought into tribunal.

To have done well, all that such a profession could ask of him, and to have made that profession still more honorable by his brilliant and sublime life, is enough for national and international, terrestrial and celestial congratulation. And then to expire beautifully while the prayers of his church were being offered at his bedside, the door of Heaven opening for his entrance as the door of earth opened for his departure, the sob of the earthly farewell caught up into raptures that never die. Yes, he lived and died in the faith of the old-fashioned Christian religion.

Young man, I want to tell you that Justice Field believed in the Bible from lid to lid, a book all true either as doctrine or history, much of it the history of events that neither God nor man approves. Our friend drank the wine of the holy sacrament and ate the bread of which "if a man eat he shall never hunger." He was the up and down, out and in friend of the church of Christ. If there had been anything illogical in our religion he would have scouted it, for he was a logician. If there had been in anything unreasonable, he would have rejected it, because he was a good reasoner. If there had been in it anything that would not stand research he would have exploded the fallacy, for his life was a life of research. Young men of Washington, young men of America, young men of the round world, a religion that would stand the test of Justice Field's penetrating and all-sacking intellect must have in it something worthy of your confidence. I tell you now that Christianity has not only the heart of the world on its side, but the brain of the world also. Ye who have tried to represent the religion of the Bible as something pusillanimous, how do you account for the Christian faith of Stephen J. Field, whose shelves of the library occupied with his magnificent decisions?

And now may the God of all comfort speak to the bereft, especially to her who was the queen of his life, from the day when as a stranger he was shown to her pew in the Episcopal church, to this time of the broken heart. He changed churches, but did not change religions, for the church in which he was born and the church in which he died alike believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son, and in the communion of saints, and in the life everlasting. Amen.

AHEAD IN ALCOHOLIC RACE.

Official Statement Shows England the Greatest Drinking Nation in the World.

An official statement just issued at London shows England to be the greatest drinking nation in the world, a discovery which has astonished her people, who hoped she had fallen behind in the alcoholic race.

Of beer England drinks 40.31 gallons, per head per annum; America, 12.20; Germany, 25.50; France, 5.10.

Of wine England drinks 3.9 gallons; America, .41; Germany, 3.31; France, 21.50.

Of spirits England drinks 1.02 per head; America, .54; Germany and France, both 1.80.

This gives England's total consumption 32.71 gallons; America's 13.43; Germany's 28.73; France's 28.70.

The drinking of wine is decreasing in England, while that of spirits and beer is increasing.

TEMPERANCE BITS.

A man's convictions are not all they should be if he is afraid to stand by them.—Lever.

You have no right to do as you please, unless you please to do right.—National Advocate.

Every intemperate man in a community is like a derelict at sea, a danger to all who sail the same waters.—United Presbyterian.

A public conscience cannot be defied. Sometimes it is asleep, and very often is hoodwinked, but when aroused to action it is irresistible.—State Leader.

In his annual statistical statement of Boston's drink bill, Dr. Dawson Burns states that last year the United Kingdom spent on intoxicants two million and a fifth more than in 1897. In Scotland, however, there was a slight decrease.

Some men will protest loudly if the saloon is located along their street or neighborhood, but be perfectly willing that the town should receive the license fee and locate it in the midst of the poor and weak who cannot help themselves.—The Pilot.

"No drink while on duty," said the New York World, "is an axiom not of morals, but of sagacious prudence"—referring to the house action, at Washington, on the cauteen, and to the navy department's late order of prohibition. What a pity all men should not be always on duty!—The Defender.

A Microbe That Drinks Rum.

Verily, strange and various are the ways and works of the ubiquitous microbe! There are species that live in air, earth and water; others dwell in our bodies and those of lower animals; they infest our food and they cover our clothes and our dwellings. Happily, most of them are harmless; many are nature's scavengers, and some, of course, produce disease. But the last addition to this list of habits on the part of the microbe family is an affection for rum. This fluid is of great alcoholic strength, and, while certain germs can live in wine, nobody supposed they could survive the intoxicating effects of strong liquor. Yet a certain microbe not only lives in the rum, but spoils it, and for this little mercy the teetotaler may at last be devoutly thankful.

A New Punishment for Drunkards.

Topers in many towns of the Argentine Republic are shamed into reformation by being compelled to sweep the streets for eight days for each offense. Respectability is no excuse for leniency.—Christian Budget.

THE PLACARD AND THE JUG.

The Former Was a Silent Witness Against the Latter and Worked Its Destruction.

A wealthy gentleman once issued a large number of temperance placards, which he desired should be posted up on fences and put in conspicuous places in public thoroughfares, and when practicable put in the windows of the various stores.

A worthy tailor, who was interested in the cause, said to himself: "I cannot help the cause by public speaking. I have no talent for that; but as hundreds of people pass my store every day, I will put one of these placards in my window. I will devote this large pane to placards, tracts, or papers which, by the blessing of God, some may be induced to stop and read."

Near him lived a man noted for his hard drinking. Every day he might be seen with a brown jug in his hand on his way to the whisky saloon. He had to pass the tailor's store. His eye rested on the placard. He stopped and read it, and passed on to the saloon. This occurred several mornings, and the tailor within could scan the man's face without himself being observed. He noticed that the man's interest in the placard increased, and, by the twitches of his face, it was evident that the words were making a deep impression on his mind.

One morning the tailor was surprised at seeing the man with the jug again reading the placard, and then heard him say: "I'll do it! I will! I will!" At the same time, raising the jug high over his head, he dashed it down on the pavement into a thousand pieces.

This drew the tailor to the door, when he kindly spoke to the man and invited him into his store, where he encountered him, and, as he was a Christian man, prayed with him, and ere long the noted drinker became a converted man. A very silent worker was this placard, but it was the means, by God's blessing, of stopping the man from further drinking. Surely we can use to good purpose the printed page, as the foregoing instance will show.—National Advocate.

ALCOHOL AND SUGAR.

Tests in the Armies of Great Britain and Germany as to Their Value as a Nation.

The British authorities some time ago made a test of the alleged value of alcohol when men are subjected to unusual and exhausting labor. Experiments were made at different times, and under varying conditions with three regiments from each of several brigades.

In one every man was forbidden to drink any alcohol whatever while the test lasted; in the second multi liquor only was taken; in the third a ration of whisky was given to each man. The whisky drinkers manifested more dash at first, but generally in about four days showed signs of weakness and fatigue; those given multi liquor displayed less dash at first, but their endurance lasted somewhat longer, while the abstainers improved daily in alertness and staying powers.

In the German army experiments are being made with sugar, which is claimed to have such great sustaining powers that it is proposed to serve it as an extra ration when unusual fatigues are to be borne.—Medical Record.

Who Is Responsible?

Who is responsible? A quiet, well-to-do neighborhood is shocked by a horrid crime. An innocent life is sacrificed and other lives are wrecked. "He was drunk," is the explanation. "That is the statement of the immediate cause, but does that sum up the case? Is the community innocent? Have the people been active in sustaining the public sentiment against intemperance? Have they, by the enforcement of the laws, done all in their power to prevent the sale of liquor? Have drunken men been arrested and made to suffer for their crime? Have the people who are themselves temperate, left that they are responsible for the social customs of their community and the personal habits of those under their care? Do they realize that the individual is, in large measure, the product of the community in which he has been brought up and lives?—United Presbyterian.

Liquor Curse of Africa.

The liquor curse among the natives of Africa is kept up by exportations from this country, and Boston is reported to be the chief port of exportation. On the west coast of Africa and far inland, bottles of gin and demijohns of rum are used as the common currency; and on the Congo one-half of all that the natives produce is paid for with liquor. Testimony before a committee of the house of representatives showed in 1890 that about 12,000,

000 gallons of spirituous liquors are annually sent from Europe and America to Africa.

Popular Delusions Shattered. Another popular delusion is shattered. Prof. Leonard Stejneger, a United States government expert, says that whisky, instead of being an antidote for snake bites, according to the general belief, is really an aggravation of the trouble, as it accelerates the circulation of the blood and hurries the poison through the veins and arteries with greater rapidity than it would otherwise have.—Chicago Tribune.

CREATING APPETITE.

Saloon Keepers Interested in Keeping Up the Supply of Drinkers.

The Missionary Review of the World says: "At a recent meeting of the Ohio Liquor league, one of the officers delivered an address, from which the following is an extract: 'The success of our business is dependent largely upon the creation of appetite for drink. Men who drink liquor like others, will drink, and if there is no new appetite created our counters will be empty, as will our coffers. After men have grown and their habits are formed, they rarely ever change in this regard. It will be needless, therefore, that missionary work be done among the boys, and I make the suggestion, gentlemen, that nickels expended in treats to the boys now will return in dollars to your tills after the appetite is formed. Above all things, create appetite.'"

This does away with arguments for the saloon based on the assertion that the saloon is a necessity, that it is the poor man's club, that he must have a place to go that he may get away from cross wife and crying children. The saloon is run for revenue only; when the revenue stops the saloon shuts its doors. The club feature, the asylum for persecuted labor fleeing from cross wives and crying babies, is not the reason for keeping the saloon; the man behind the bar, or the brewer behind the man behind the bar is in the business for the money he can get, not for the good he can do. Quite aside from the fact that the wife is crosser and the baby more fretful after the man has returned, the man himself being afflicted by his evening in the asylum from acting the part of husband and father, the great danger from the saloon is simply this, that it creates appetite. It does not meet a want, it makes a want. It deals in rotten grain and makes rotten men. The appetite for good fellowship is natural; the appetite for alcohol is artificial, created. The saloon does not exist to meet the natural appetite, but to create the artificial appetite. It makes goods and it makes a market; the goods come from the fields that bore grain for food, the market comes from the homes that are robbed and wronged to make a market. A created appetite does not stop when created, it destroys the natural appetite for good fellowship and wrecks the home.

Appetites go in droves, the saloon enters to the gambling appetite, to the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye. What the church is set to destroy the saloon is set to create or foster. Think: the raw material woven into the web of appetite by your saloon may be the thread of life spun in your home. The creator of appetite asks no questions; it will invest nickels in your boy for dollars as quickly as in any boy. In the sight of God one boy is as good as another; in the sight of the saloon a boy is simply a possible appetite, and a created appetite is a source of income. Ought Christian men to perpetuate an institution whose avowed purpose is to create appetite, whose success is at the cost of all that makes life worth living in a decent community?—Rev. O. P. Gifford, D. D., in Chicago Standard.

PLAYING FOR GOOD TERMS

Filipino Emissaries Go Back.

MUST QUIT THE WAR.

Their Surrender the Only Conditions.

General Otis Promises Complete Amnesty to All Who Lay Down Their Arms.

MANILA, April 29.—3 p. m.—The conference today between General Otis and Col. Manuel Argueroles and Lieut. Jose Bernal, who came from General Luna under a flag of truce yesterday, to ask for a cessation of hostilities, was fruitless.

It is understood that the Filipino commissioners were given the terms upon which the Americans will consent to negotiate. The Filipinos admit that they have been defeated and it is expected that they will return with fresh proposals from General Luna.

MUST SURRENDER.

General Otis Will Treat With Insurgents to No Other End.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—General Otis asked the war department that the conference with the Filipinos terminated this morning. He says that they wanted three weeks in which to allow their congress to decide whether hostilities should cease. The proposition was declined. The representatives retired to the insurgent lines.

General Otis says the insurgents are tired of fighting and are no doubt seeking the best terms. In another cable General Otis expresses thanks to the president for his appreciation of the work of the army in the Philippines.

It is stated that the war department that the insurgent leaders probably will confer and seek another conference with General Otis, and that the general will no doubt grant general amnesty.

The full text of the dispatches from General Otis are as follows: "Manila, April 29.—Adjutant General, Washington: Conference with insurgent representatives terminated this morning. They request a cessation of hostilities three weeks to enable them to call their congress to decide whether to continue prosecution of war or propose terms of peace. Proposition declined and full amnesty promised on surrender. Believe insurgents tired of war but seek to secure terms of peace through what they denominated their representative congress."

"Manila, April 29.—Adjutant General, Washington: The congratulations of his excellency, the president, for which all grateful will be conveyed as directed."

"Otis."

"Otis."

A RUSE TO GAIN TIME.

General Otis View of the Overtures of the Filipinos.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A dispatch from Manila says: In an interview with General Otis at the former Spanish governor's palace in Malacanang, the American commander said:

"The insurgents thought that their position on the river bank at Calumpit was impregnable. There they made a successful stand against the Spaniards in 1896."

"Our success in storming their strong entrenchments has demoralized them and the people are ready to give up the fight. As to the emissaries who have been sent by General Luna, my opinion is that they desire to gain time. They say that they wish to submit the question of continuing the war or not to their congress meeting in May. These leaders think that they represent the Filipino people."

"I answered that I would be glad to receive emissaries from the insurgent chiefs, provided they came with a proposition for absolute surrender. These were the only terms that I could consider."

"The emissaries would not agree to this as they thought it contrary to the dictates of honor. The emissaries added that if peace were forced upon them it would not be permanent."

"The Filipino refugees are all gathered at San Fernando. The insurgents of the north are said to be in mutiny."

The peasants in large numbers

are returning to their homes within our territory.

ARE HELD PRISONERS.

Baler Insurgents Say They Have the Men of the Yorktown.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila says: The insurgents at Baler state that they have the missing men of the gunboat Yorktown and are holding them as prisoners.

ELKS INITIATE SIX.

Visitors From Other Lodges Come to See the Fair.

The initiating team of the Fort Wayne Elks have a wide reputation for the way they introduce candidates to membership, and at last night's session several members of outside lodges were present to find out their methods and they departed satisfied. The class of six who were initiated last night were W. D. Jones, Charles Wieser, George Jowell, Harry Culbertson, James Huret and W. W. Rosenthal. The visitors were:

South Bend—F. H. Baebert, Garret—G. B. Spencer, E. B. Thumman.

Auburn—Dr. W. H. Nasbaum, Ligonier—R. J. Stansbury, Sol Henech, J. E. McDonald.

Muncie—F. O. Gill, M. Topp, J. K. Ritter.

Elkhart—Dan J. Ford, E. J. MoHenry, Harry S. Chester.

Grand Rapids—Malcom McInnes, E. L. Bridge.

At the close of the initiation proceedings the members adjourned to enjoy a lunch. An impromptu program was gotten up and consisted of the following numbers: Songs by Fred Ubrubius, whistlings by Frank Caley, and recitation of an original poem by Harry S. Chester, of Elkhart. Congressman Robinson made an address and other speeches and addresses were given. G. W. Wilson and Dr. Mungen acted as toastmasters.

A CONCERT PHONOGRAPH.

Latest Production of the Edison Company Now on Exhibition Here.

C. B. Haynes, representing the National Phonograph company of the Edison laboratory at Orange, N. J., is at the Packard piano store giving exhibitions of the latest production of Mr. Edison's wonderful genius. It is a mammoth concert phonograph which produces a much greater volume of sound than the old style phonograph, and reproduces the tones in all their natural richness and clearness. There are no grating, metallic discords, but the beauty and sweetness of the human voice, or the melody of the instrument is perfectly rendered. Its power will fill the largest auditorium, and it is claimed that under favorable circumstances the new concert phonograph can be heard at a distance of half a mile. It is worth a visit to the Packard store to hear.

ORDERED HOME.

Fort Wayne Recruiting Station Will Close This Evening.

Today will complete, for the present at least, the enlisting of men for the regular army in Fort Wayne. Captain Waterman yesterday received orders from Captain Black, the recruiting officer at Indianapolis, to close the Fort Wayne office and bring all records and stationery to Indianapolis. The order is, no doubt, due to the fact that enlistments have been coming in very slowly of late. The office was opened March 16, and there has been a total of sixty-nine men sent forward from the post—thirty-six during March and thirty-three in April.

James R. Hill, of Warsaw, enlisted today, and will be sent to the Pacific coast. Captain Waterman thinks it probable the office in this city will be reopened after a few months. He leaves for Indianapolis tomorrow.

ABOUT A NEW CABLE.

That Germany Will Land Here.

Each Hopes It Will Serve to Cement Closer the Friendship of the Two Nations.

BERLIN, April 29.—Emperor Wilhelm has sent the following telegram to President McKinley:

"The imperial postmaster general has just informed me that your excellency has kindly given your consent to the laying of a new cable on the shores of the United States. This welcome news will create unanimous satisfaction and joy throughout the German empire and I thank your excellency most heartily for it. May the new cable unite our two great nations more closely and help to promote peace, prosperity and good will among their people."

President McKinley replied as follows:

"I have received with pleasure your majesty's telegram regarding the laying of the new cable on the shores of the United States and more so as I saw therein an opportunity to further the high mission of international telegraphy drawing in closer the distant nations and bringing their peoples into more intimate associations in interests of mutual advantage, good will and unity. That the new cable will prove an additional bond between the two countries is my fervent wish and hope."

Brush, who was in Chicago, but consulted with President Golt and Manager Nash, both of whom asserted that President Power was wrong in the Carney decision. Nick Young was telegraphed this afternoon for permission to pitch Carney and President Power was notified that inasmuch as Carney had signed only a Fort Wayne contract he could be pitched in championship games until the national board made its decision. He may pitch to-morrow at Toledo. He will, at least, pitch one of the four games there.

WILL BE MANY BIDS For the Work of Paving the Fort Wayne Streets.

Five Asphalt Companies Telegraph for Specifications—The Intercepting Sewer—Notes.

There will be plenty of bidders for the work on Fort Wayne streets this summer. This has been indicated during the past two days by the receipt of five telegrams from the east making inquiry for plans and specifications of the proposed street improvements. These five messages were from representatives of asphalt companies who are desirous of bidding on the work. Among these were telegrams from the Trinidad Paving company, of New York, and the Valosa Asphalt company, of Philadelphia. The Bermudez company, of Indianapolis, also asked for copies of the specifications. Clerk Schmidt said this morning that the board would not make reply to the messages for the reason that they did not know the kind of asphalt the companies handled and the specifications limited the material to Alcatraz, Trinidad and Bermudez. It is expected, however, that some of these companies will submit bids on the specifications and force down the price of asphalt. There is hardly a doubt now but that the Alcatraz, Trinidad and Bermudez people will submit bids. Besides these it is expected that there will be not less than four bids on vitrified brick and two more on block asphalt. Notwithstanding all this competition, well posted street builders believe the prices will range much higher than last season. Some of the bidders are expected in the city Monday, although the bids are not opened until Thursday evening.

THE BIG SEWER.

City Engineer Randall is making drafts of the intercepting sewer which plans will be submitted to the officers of the Nickel Plate railway. The sewer will cross the Nickel Plate near Orr's mill, again near the Arlington hotel and again near the Glasgow avenue. The city desires to use the right of way of the railway for a big portion of the sewer. The present plan also carries it through two houses and a barn in Reed's subdivision to the city.

There have been issued from Comptroller Berghoff's office since the first of last September almost 3,000 bicycle tags. Of these more than 1,000 have been issued during the present month. MAY GO BACK TO HIS HOME

This Privilege Allowed Mr. Schell.

JUDGE SO DECIDED.

Physicians Testify as to His Health.

Assert That He Has Some Chances for Recovery—In- teresting Court News.

In the circuit court this morning E. V. Harris, attorney for J. F. Schell, petitioned Judge O'Rourke for the removal of his client from the county jail to the home in Lakeside. In support of this application for removal Mr. Harris offered the testimony of Drs. W. P. Wherry, A. J. Boswell and W. W. Barnett as to his physical condition.

Dr. Wherry, the regular attending physician, testified that Mr. Schell was ill with gastric catarrh and his condition was such as to make his confinement in jail very dangerous. His patient has grown much worse since his confinement, and while he would not say that he could not get well in jail, he believed continued confinement would retard his recovery.

Dr. Boswell examined Mr. Schell this morning and found him to be a very sick man. He agreed with Mr. Wherry as to the danger of confinement. The doctor said further that the mind affected the physical condition and if Schell stayed in jail his wife must either abandon him or stay in jail, and if they were separated the results might be dangerous. He would not admit that continued confinement would result in death, but did believe it would delay recovery.

Dr. Barnett had examined the patient Thursday evening and this morning and found him very ill with gastric catarrh. In fact, Dr. Barnett believes that he is also suffering with catarrh of the intestines. He considered Mr. Schell's condition to be very dangerous and believed a mistake was made in removing him to the jail. The trip had affected him and he had grown no better during confinement. The doctor said that removal might again affect the prisoner's physical condition, but it would so relieve his mind that to take him back home was the lesser of the two evils. He would say only that his recovery would be delayed if kept looked up.

Dputy Prosecutor Thomas objected to release without bond, inasmuch as there had been no evidence offered that immediate fatal results might happen if the prisoner was not removed.

Mr. Harris made an earnest plea for the removal of the prisoner, asserting that he could not walk and it would be impossible for him to get away. He believed that unless death followed the law was certain to take its course, bond or no bond.

Judge O'Rourke would not give his decision before noon, but intimated that if arrangements were made to care for Schell at home without cost to the county he could be taken there.

For a number of years it was connected with the light artillery of the Indiana National guard, but it lost a number of prominent members by their removal from the city, and was unable to suitably fill the vacancies. Last evening the six stockholders, Messrs. Joseph Breilmaier, John Shaffer, Harry Tarmen, E. A. Gillett, Frank Thompson and W. D. Kyle, concluded to dispose of the property as before stated. The last public appearance of the band was upon the departure of the soldiers for Indianapolis last spring.

CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ailment.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an expression more or less of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better.

In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a wellspring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more. I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken seven bottles of it, and am entirely cured."

Mrs. J. M. Foreman, 26 N. Woodberry Ave., Baltimore, Md. The above letter from Mrs. Foreman is only one of thousands.

KOKOMOS SHUT OUT.

The Kokomos came to Fort Wayne yesterday swelled with pride at the recent defeats they had administered to Grand Rapids, Buffalo, Elwood and some of the other teams who would be easy victims for Fort Wayne.

Whisen was in the points for Fort Wayne and pitched even a more effective game than he did against the Buffalos.

Buffalo won another game from the Indianapolis team yesterday and Nash wasn't in the game, either.

Those Toledo fellows can play ball some. They won the second game from the Columbus Giants by a score of 13 to 1.

Whisen will do, thank you. He has pitched two wonderful games for Fort Wayne and it is not hard to guess what will happen when he has settled down and gets perfect control of the sphere.

Irwin Belden is as fast an outfielder as plays in the Interstate. His health is good this spring and indications are that he will rank up well as a batter.

The diamond is still very rough and needs a hard rain and some rolling afterward before it will be in perfect condition.

Buffalo won another game from the Indianapolis team yesterday and Nash wasn't in the game, either.

Only once did the Kokomos get a man as far as third. That was "Kid" Fear, who caught Hemming in the days of the old Indiana league.

Tim Flood is as fine a ball player as there is in the Interstate league. All that Tim needs do is to keep his head and continue the pace he has set this spring and he will be in demand before the commencement of another season.

Edwards, the Kokomo backstop, gave the poorest exhibition of catching ever seen in the city. He couldn't locate second at all and as for foul flies he did not get close to them.

Whissen will do, thank you. He has pitched two wonderful games for Fort Wayne and it is not hard to guess what will happen when he has settled down and gets perfect control of the sphere.

Stahl lined out another two-bagger yesterday, but although Charley Nichols was in the box the Philadelphians were bound to win and they did it easily.

Krueger, Torreyson's third baseman, was in Fort Wayne yesterday en route to Grand Rapids. Billy Crook will now have to look for another job, as Torreyson will not carry two extra infielders.

New Castle and Youngstown are having quite a "rag-chewing" match over the abilities of their teams and they make bluffs of bets ranging from $100 to $1,000.

Carney was in a Fort Wayne uniform yesterday and it is just that kind that suits him. He ought to be allowed to wear it the entire season.

The Kokomos play Dayton to-day and to-morrow.

The first championship game at the new park will be played next Thursday afternoon with Grand Rapids, and every lover of the game in Fort Wayne should attend and show the management that they appreciate their efforts in giving this city the handiest and best base ball park in any minor league.

The Buckeye club will go to Toledo Sunday in a body. The members of the club will be tendered a dinner by the management of the Buckeye Brewing company.

Steve O'Connor has prepared some "rooter" badges for those who attend the ball game at Toledo next Sunday. The club yell is: "Mad Hens, ball! Fort Wayne, rah! Knock 'em out, Line 'em out! Bind, bum, rah!"

Rafert, an old Fort Wayne catcher, is in the city visiting with his friends.

"Wesley and His Work" will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. J. S. Ainslie at Plymouth church Sunday evening. At intervals during the summer, Mr. Ainslie proposes to speak, on Sunday evenings, of the life and services of the great religious leaders of modern Christendom.

Mrs. M. L. Hopkins, matron of the Buffalo, N. Y., Orphans' home, is visiting her brother, the Rev. J. A. P. McGaw, D. D., of this city.

Brodie and Zinn, the old standbys, will be the battery in the opening game at Toledo to-morrow and they will be watched by several hundred "fans" who are going to the lake city with Dick Thompson at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning.

ORGANIZATION IS COMPLETED

Fort Wayne Electric Mfg Co. the Name.

A CARD TO PATRONS

Announcing Their Readiness for Business.

President Coffin and Other Officers Will Arrive Here Tonight.

President Coffin, First Vice President Green, Attorney Parsons and Export Accountant Knell, of the General Electric company, will arrive in the city this evening and spend several days here getting the Fort Wayne branch of the industry in shape for business. The following checkered letter, which is now in the hands of the printer and which explains itself, will be issued next Monday:

"Fort Wayne, Ind., May 1, '09.
"To Our Customers, Friends and the Public: Notice is hereby given that the property of the Fort Wayne Electric corporation has been sold, and a new company formed to perpetuate the business of the manufacture and sale of electrical machinery and apparatus under the 'Wood' patents at Fort Wayne. This company will be known as the Fort Wayne Electric Manufacturing company and its object is to continue the manufacture of the 'Wood' systems of arc, alternating current and direct current apparatus.

"Not only will the high standard of excellence attained by the systems be maintained, but improvements will be made from time to time as experience may suggest. A sufficient stock will always be kept on hand so that orders for apparatus and supplies can be filled without delay.

"Thanking you for past favors, and assuring you that any future business will receive prompt and careful attention, we are
"Yours very truly,
"Fort Wayne Electric Mfg. Co.,
"By James J. Wood,
"Electrician and Gen. Supt."

In an interview this morning, Superintendent Wood said: "The SEVENTEEN can announce to the public that the electric works will soon be employing the largest force in its history. If we cannot sell enough of my machines to keep things moving, we will build some of a different pattern, the models for which will be sent here from Schenectady, where the General company's main works are located."

Next Monday the work of overhauling the patterns at the works will be taken up and pushed rapidly along. All the most important wooden patterns will be rebuilt out of brass and this will make considerable work for the foundry department.

Eight Hours a Day.
Conductors, switchmen and brakemen employed in the Boston yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford have been notified by the management that henceforth they will be required to work only eight hours a day, instead of ten. This change is made without reduction in wages and without any friction between the employers and employees. The road management had a number of consultations with the employees about the matter before the change was announced. In many instances wages were restored to their former amount. Other employees on the road feel confident that they also will be given a shorter workday as soon as the officials can adjust the system for continuing the work without interruption. Members of the Freight Handlers' union who are employed by this company have taken initiative measures to obtain the eight-hour day. This movement is not alone for the freight men who work on the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

An Agent Conductor Dead.
William H. Lano was killed at Alliance, Ohio, yesterday. The deceased was one of the oldest conductors in the employ of the Pennsylvania company. Two years ago a trunk fell off a truck on the depot platform at Mansfield and injured Mr. Lano severely and since that time he has been unable to work. For forty-four years he was employed on the eastern division of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, run in and out of Crest-fine, and was known to all the railway men on the western division who run into Crestline.

A Boiler-maker's Long Service.

Thirty years ago today John T. Leach took a position as boiler-maker in the Pittsburg shops, where he has been employed continuously ever since. Mr. Leach is an Englishman, coming to America in 1868. On the first of November of that year he arrived in Fort Wayne and immediately went to work in the boiler shop of McLaughlin & Kays, which was located on Chicago street. He remained there until the 29th of April the following year, when he resigned to take a position in the Pittsburg shops. Mr. Leach is quite popular with his fellow men and was the western division's member of the advisory board of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief union several years, an office that is filled by election by the members themselves.

Received Its Engine.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana company has received the four large passenger engines ordered from the Baldwin works some time ago. These are the finest locomotives ever placed in service on that road. They will haul the "Northland Vostibula," a limited train running between Cincinnati and Mackinaw, which will also be the best train in the service of the company.

Three Big Damages Suits.

The Nickel Plate will be asked to pay to the relatives of the deceased the sum of $39,009 for the killing of George Sherburn, his wife and a little son, which occurred at Kinzie, Ind., August 21, 1897. The cases will be tried in the Whitley circuit courts, a change of venue from Kosciusko having been granted. The best of legal talent has been engaged by both parties and the contest will be fierce and long.

A Growing Brotherhood.

At its meeting tomorrow morning, the local branch of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will initiate a class of eight. The lodge has just completed the work of repainting, carpeting and furnishing its rooms and now has one of the prettiest halls in the city. Next week, Charles A. Scott, who has been chosen to represent the local branch at the national convention, will leave for New Orleans, where the convention will convene May 15th and continue in session about two weeks.

General and Personal.

C. F. Lehart and John Walker, machinists, have secured employment in the Wabash shops. Superintendent J. B. Barnes, of Springfield, Ill., is in the city on business for the Wabash company.

The Ohio Falls Car works, at Jeffersonville, have contracts on hand to keep them busy until September.

A LESSON FROM LIFE.

Dr. Talmage Eulogizes the Late Justice Stephen J. Field.

Religious Training Laid the Foundation of His Character - The Great Divine's Tribute to a Departed Friend.

One of the most notable characters of our time is the subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse, and the lessons drawn are inspiring. Text, 2 Samuel, 2:33: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

Here is a plumed catastrophe, followed by King David and a funeral oration which he delivered at the tomb. Concerning Abner, the great, David weeps out the text. More appropriately than when originally uttered we may now utter this resounding lamentation: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"

It was 30 minutes after six, the exact hour of the sunset of the Sabbath day, and while the evening lights were being kindled, that the soul of Stephen J. Field, the lawyer, the judge, the patriot, the statesman, the Christian, ascended. It was sundown in the home on younger Capitol hill, as it was sundown on all the surrounding hills, but in both cases the sun set to be followed by a glorious sunrise. Hear the Easter nuthatches still lingering in the air. "The trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall rise."

Our departed friend came forth a boy from a minister's home in New England. He knelt with father and mother at morning and evening prayer, learned from maternal lips lessons of piety which lasted him and controlled him amid all the varied and exciting scenes of a lifetime and helped him to die in peace an octogenarian. Blot out from American history the names of those ministers' sons who have done honor to judicial bench and commercial circle and national legislature and presidential chair, and you would obliterate many of the grandest chapters of that history. It is no small advantage to have started from a home where God is honored and the subject of a world's emancipation from sin and sorrow is under constant discussion. The Ten Commandments, which are the foundation of all good law—Roman law, German law, English law, American law—are the best foundation upon which to build character, and those which the boy, Stephen J. Field, so often heard in the parsonage at Stockbridge were his guidance when, a half century after, as a justice of the supreme court of the United States, he unraveled his opinions. Bibles, hymn books, catechisms, family prayers, atmosphere sanctified, are good surroundings for boys and girls to start from, and if our later ideas of religion and Sabbath days and home training produce as splendid men and women as the much-decried Puritanic Sabbath and Puritanic teachings have produced it will be a matter of congratulation and thanksgiving.

Do not pass by the fact that I have not yet seen emphasized that Stephen J. Field was a minister's son. Notwithstanding that there are conspicuous exceptions to the rule—and the exceptions have built up a stereotyped definition on the subject—statistics plain and undeniable prove that a larger proportion of ministers' sons turn out well than are to be found in any other genealogical table. Let all the personages of all denominations of Christians where children are growing up take the consolation. See the star of hope pointing down to that manger!

Notice also that our departed friend was a member of a royal family. There were no crowns or scepters or thrones in that ancestral line, but the family of the Fields, like the family of the New York Princes, like the family of the Princes Alexanders, like a score of families that I might mention, it was best to mention them, were "the children of the King," and had part in their honors brighter than crowns and welded influence longer and wider than scepters. That family of Fields traces an honorable lineage back 800 years to Robertus de la Feld, condottiere of William the Conqueror. Let us thank God for such families, generation after generation on the side of that which is right and good. Your sons of that country minister, known the world over for extraordinary usefulness in their spheres, legal, commercial, literary and theological, and a daughter, the mother of one of the associate justices of the supreme court. Such families counterbalance for good those families all wrong from generation to generation—families that stand for wealth, unrighteously got and stingily kept or wickedly squandered; families that stand for fraud or impurity or materialism; families that immediately come to every mind, though through sense of propriety they do not come to the lip. The name of Field will survive centuries and be a synonym for religion, for great jurisprudence, for able Christian journalism, as the names of the Pharaohs and the Caesars stand for cruelty and oppression and vice.

While all parents cannot aspire to have such conspicuous households as the one the name of whose son we now celebrate, all parents may by fidelity in prayer and holy example have their sons and daughters become kings and queens unto God, to reign forever and ever. But the work has already been done, and I could go through this country and find a thousand households which have by the grace of God and blessing upon paternal and maternal excellence become the royal families of America.

Let young men beware lest they by their behavior blot such family records with some misdeed. We can all think of households the names of which meant everything honorable and consecrated for a long while, but by the deed of one son sacrificed, disgraced and blotted. Look out how you rob your consecrated ancestry of the name they handed to you unswayed! Better as trustee to that name add something worthy. Do something to honor the old homestead, whether a mountain cabin or a city mansion or a country parsonage.

Rev. David Dudley Field, though 32

years passed upward, is honored to-day by the Christian life, the service, the death of his son Stephen.

Among the most absorbing books of the Bible is the book of Kings, which again and again illustrates that though piety is not hereditary, the style of parentage has much to do with the style of descendant. It declares of King Abime: "He walked in all the sins of his father which he had done before him," and of King Ahab: "He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father Amariah had done." We owe a debt to those who have gone before in our line as certainly as we have obligations to those who subsequently appear in the household. Not so sacred is your old father's walking staff, which you keep in his memory, or the eyeglasses through which your mother studied the Bible in her old age as the name they bore, the name which you inherited. Keep it bright, I charge you. Keep it suggestive of something elevated in character. Trample not underfoot that which to your father and mother was dearer than life itself. Defend their graves as they defended your cradle. Family crest of arms, escutcheons, emblems ancestral, non combatant, or non rampant, but better than any attractive inscription is a family name which means from generation to generation faith in God, self-sacrifice, duty performed, a life well lived and a death happily died, and a Heaven gloriously won. That was the kind of name that Justice Field augmented and adorned and perpetuated—a name honorable at the close of the eighteenth century, more honored now at the close of the nineteenth.

Notice also that our illustrious friend was great in reasonable and genial dissent. Of the 1,042 opinions he rendered none was more potent or memorable than those rendered while he was in small minority and sometimes in a minority of one. A learned and distinguished lawyer of this country said he would rather be the author of Judge Field's dissenting opinions than to be the author of the constitution of the United States. The tendency is to go with the multitude, to think what others think, to say and do what others do. Sometimes the majority are wrong, and it requires heroes to take the negative, but to do that logically and in good humor requires some elements of make up not often found in judicial dissenters or, indeed, in any class of men. There are so many people in the world opposed to everything and who display their opposition in rancorous and obnoxious ways that a Judge Field was needed to make the negative respected and genial and right. Minorities under God save the world and save the church. An unthinking and precipitate "yes" may be stopped by a righteous and heroic "no." The majority are not always right. The old Gospel hymn declares it:

Numbers are no mark that men will right be found;
A few were saved in Noah's ark to many millions drowned.

The declaration of American independence was a dissenting opinion. The Free Church of Scotland, under Chalmers and his co-workers was a dissenting movement. The Bible itself, Old Testament and New Testament, is a protest against the theories that would have destroyed the world, and is a dissenting as well as a divinely inspired book. The Deuteron on Sinai repeated ten times "Thou shalt not." For ages to come will be quoted from law books in courtrooms. Justice Field's magnificent dissenting opinions.

Notice that our ascended friend had such a character as assuage and profit alone can develop. He had not come to the soft cushions of the supreme court bench stepping on cloth of gold and seated all along the line by handclapping of applause. Country personages do not rock their babies in satin-lined cradle or afterward send them out into the world with enough in their hand to purchase place and power. Pastors' salaries in the early part of this century hardly ever reached $700 a year. Economies that sometimes cut into the bone characterized many of the homes of the New England clergymen. The young lawyer of whom we speak today arrived in San Francisco in 1849 with only ten dollars in his pocket. Williamstown college was only introductory to a postgraduate course which our illustrious friend took while administering justice and battling ruffianism amid the mining camps of California. Oh, those "forty-niners," as they were called, through what privations, through what narrow escapes, amid what exposures they moved! Administering and executing law among outlaws never has been an easy undertaking. Among mountaineers, many of whom had no regard for human life, and where the snap of pistol and bang of gun were not unusual responses, required courage of the highest metal.

Behind a dry goods box, surrounded by tall candles, Judge Field began his judicial career. What exciting scenes he passed through! An infernal machine was handed to him, and inside the lid of the box was pasted his decision in the Pueblo case, the decision that had balked unprincipled speculators. Ten years ago his life would have passed out had not an officer of the law shot down his assailant. It took a long training of hardship and abuse and misrepresentation and threat of violence and flash of assassin's knife to fit him for the high place where he could defy legislatures and congresses and presidents and the world when he knew he was right. Hardship is the grindstone that sharpens intellectual faculties and the sword with which to strike effectively for God and one's country.

Notice also how much our friend did for the honor of the judiciary. What momentous scenes have been witnessed in our United States supreme court, on the bench and before the bench, whether far back it held its sessions in the upper room of the exchange at New York or afterward for ten years in the city hall at Philadelphia or later in the cellar of younger Capitol, the place where for many years the congressional library was kept, a sepulchre where books were buried alive, the hole called by John Randolph "the cave of Trophimus!" What mighty men stood before that pleading in immortal eloquence on questions of national import!

Edmund Randolph and Alexander Hamilton and Pinkney and Jeremiah Mason and Chief Justice and the weird and irresistible Rufus Choate and George Wood and Charles O'Connor and James T. Brady and Francis B. Cutting and men now living just as powerful.

How suggestive the invitation which William Wirt, the great Virginian, wrote his friend inviting him to younger supreme court: "To-morrow a week will come on the great steamboat question from New York. Emmett and Oakley on one side, Webster and myself on the other. Come down and hear it. Emmett's whole soul is in the case, and he will stretch all his powers. Oakley is said to be one of the finest logicians of the age, as much a Platonist as Emmett is a Thomist, and Webster is as ambitious as Caesar. He will not be outdone by any man it is with in the compass of his power to avoid it. Come to Washington. It will be a combat worth witnessing." The supreme court has stood so high in England and the United States that the views of a few who have occupied that important place have not been able to disgrace it, neither the corruption of Francis Bacon, nor the cruelty of Sir George Mackenzie, nor the Sabbath desecration of Lord Castlereagh.

To that highest of all tribunes Abraham Lincoln called our friend, but he lived long enough to honor the supreme court more than it had ever honored him. For more than 34 years he sat in the presence of this nation and of all nations a model judge. Fearless, integrity, devotion to principle, characterized him. No bribe ever touched his hand. No profane word ever scalded his tongue. No blemish of wrong ever marred his character. Fully qualified was he to have his name associated in the history of this country with the greatest of the judiciary.

As at 12 o'clock day by day on younger hill the gavel falls in the supreme courtroom, and it is announced that the chief justice of the United States and the associate justices are about to enter, and all counselors at the bar and all spectators rise to greet them, and the officer with the words: "Oyez, oyez, oyez!" announces that all is now ready for a hearing and exclaims: "God save the United States of America," so I wish we could in imagination gather together those who have occupied that high judicial place in this and other lands, and they might enter, and after the falling of some mighty gavel had demanded attention we could look upon them—Marshall, the giant of American jurisprudence, and John Jay, of whom Daniel Webster said in commemoration: "When the spotless robe of the judicial robe fell on John Jay, it touched nothing less spotless than itself," and Rutledge and Cushing and Ellsworth and Joseph Story, called the Walter Scott of common law, and Sir Matthew Hale and Lord Eldon and Lord Tenterden and Sir James McIntosh and Mansfield and the long line of lord chancellors and the great judges from both sides of the sea, and after they had taken their places in our quickened imagination and distinguished cases of centuries which they decided might again be called on, after the assembled nations had ejaculated: "God save the United States of America," "God save Great Britain," "God save the nations."

Al, how the law honors and sanctifies everything it touches! Natural law, Civil law, Social law, Commercial law, Common law, Moral law, Ecclesiastical law, International law. Oh, the dignity, the impressiveness, the power of law! It is the only thing before which Jehovah bows, but He bows before that, although the law is of His own making. The law! By it worlds swing. By it the fate of centuries is decided. By it all the affairs of time and all the cycles of eternity will be governed. We cannot soar so high, or sink so deep, or reach out so far, or live so long as to escape it. It is the throne on which the Almighty sits. To interpret law, what a profession! What a responsibility! What an exaltation when the judge he a Lord Jeffrey! What a benediction if he be a Chancellor Kent!

In passing let me say that for this chief tribunal of our country congress should soon provide a better place. Let some of the moneys voted for the improvement of rivers which are nothing but dry creeks and for harbors which will never have any shipping and for monuments to some people whom it is not at all important for us to remember be voted for the erection of a building worthy our United States supreme court. John Ruskin, in "Stones of Venice," calls attention to the pleasing fact that in the year 812 the dogs of Venice devoted himself to putting up two great buildings—St. Mark's, for the worship of God, and a palace for the administration of justice to man. In its appreciation of what is best let 1899 be behind 812. With such granite in our quarries and such architects capable of drafting sublime structure and such magnificent sites on which to build let not another year pass before we hear the traveling on the corner stone of a temple to be occupied by the highest court of the land.

Have you ever realized how much God has honored law in the fact that all up and down the Bible He makes the judge a type of Himself and employs the scene of a courtroom to set forth the grandeur of the great judgment day? Book of Genesis: "Shall not the judge of all the earth do right?" Book of Deuteronomy: "The Lord shall judge His people." Book of Psalms: "God is Judge Himself." Book of the Acts: "Judge of quick and dead." Book of Timothy: "The Lord is the righteous judge." Never will it be understood how God honors judges and courtrooms until the thunder of the last day shall pound the opening of the great assize—the day of trial, the day of reckoning, the day of doom, the day of judgment. The law of the case on that occasion will be read, and the judgment of ten counts, which are the Ten Commandments. Justice will plead the case against us, but our glorious advocate will plead in our behalf, for "we have an advocate with the Father—Jesus Christ, the righteous." Then the case will be decided in our clearance, as the Judge announces: "There is now, therefore, no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus." Under the grandest galleries of cloud on that last day and under the swaying upholstery of a burning heavens and while the Alps and Himalayas and Mount Washington are taking part on their faces we will be able to understand the significance of those Scripture passages which speak of God as Judge and employ the courtroom of earth as typical of the scene when all nations shall be brought into tribunal.

To have done well, all that such a profession could ask of him, and to have made that profession still more honorable by his brilliant and sublime life, is enough for national and international, terrestrial and celestial congratulation. And then to expire beautifully while the prayers of his church were being offered at his bedside, the door of Heaven opening for his entrance as the door of earth opened for his departure, the sob of the earthly farewell caught up into raptures that never die. Yes, he lived and died in the faith of the old-fashioned Christian religion.

Young man, I want to tell you that Justice Field believed in the Bible from lid to lid, a book all true either as doctrine or history, much of it the history of events that neither God nor man approves. Our friend drank the wine of the holy sacrament and ate the bread of which "if a man eat he shall never hunger." He was the up and down, and out friend of the church of Christ. If there had been anything illogical in our religion he would have scented it, for he was a logician. If there had been in it anything unreasonable, he would have rejected it, because he was a good reasoner. If there had been in it anything that could not stand research he would have exploded the fallacy, for his life was a life of research. Young men of Washington, young men of America, young men of the round world, a religion that would stand the test of Justice Field's penetrating and all-reaching intellect must have in it something worthy of your confidence. I tell you now that Christianity has not only the heart of the world on its side, but the brain of the world also. We who have tried to represent the religion of the Bible as something pusillanimous, how do you account for the Christian faith of Stephen J. Field, whose shelves of the law library occupied with his magnificent decisions?

And now may the God of all comfort speak to the bereft, especially to her who was the queen of his life, from the day when as a stranger he was shown to her new in the Episcopal church, to this time of the broken heart. He changed churches, but did not change religions, for the church in which he was born and the church in which he died alike believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son, and in the communion of saints, and in the life everlasting. Amen.

AHEAD IN ALCOHOLIC RACE.
Official Statement Shows England the Greatest Drinking Nation in the World.

An official statement just issued at London shows England to be the greatest drinking nation in the world, a discovery which has astonished her people, who hoped she had fallen behind in the alcoholic race.

Of beer England drinks 30.31 gallons; per head per annum; America, 12.20; Germany, 25.50; France, 6.10. Of wine England drinks 2.9 gallons; America, 1.4; Germany, 1.3; France, 21.80. Of spirits England drinks 1.02 per head; America, .84; Germany and France, both 1.39. This gives England's total consumption 32.71 gallons; America's 13.48; Germany's 28.73; France's 28.79. The drinking of wine is decreasing in England, while that of spirits and beer is increasing.

TEMPERANCE BITS.

A public conscience cannot be defied. Sometimes it is asleep, and very often is hoodwinked, but when aroused to action it is irresistible.—State Leader.

In his annual statistical statement of Boston's drink bill, Dr. Dawson Burns states that last year the United Kingdom spent on intoxicants two million and a fifth more than in 1897. In Scotland, however, there was a slight decrease.

Some men will protest loudly if the saloon is located along their street or neighborhood, but they perfectly willing that the town should receive the license fee and locate it in the midst of the poor and weak who cannot help themselves.—The Pilot.

"No drink while on duty," said the New York World, "is an axiom not of morals, but of sagacious prudence"—referring to the house action at Washington, on the caisson, and to the navy department's late order of prohibition. What a pity all men should not be always on duty!—The Defender.

A Microbe That Drinks Rum.
Verily, strange and various are the ways and works of the ubiquitous microbe! There are species that live in air, earth and water; others dwell in our bodies and those of lower animals; they infest our food and they enter our clothes and our dwellings. Happily, most of them are harmless; many are nature's scavengers, and some, of course, produce disease. But the last addition to this list of habits on the part of the microbe family is an affection for rum. This fluid is of great alcoholic strength, and while certain germs can live in wine, nobody supposes they could survive the intoxicating effects of strong liquor. Yet a certain microbe not only lives in the rum, but spoils it, and for this little men's the teetotaler may at least be devoutly thankful.

A New Pantheism for Drunkards.
Tapers in many towns of the Argentine Republic are shrouded into reformation by being compelled to sweep the streets for eight days for each offense. Respectability is no excuse for leniency.—Christian Budget.

THE PLACARD AND THE JUG.

The Former Was a Silent Witness Against the Latter and Worked Its Destruction.

A wealthy gentleman once issued a large number of temperance placards, which he desired should be posted up on fences and put in conspicuous places in public thoroughfares, and when practicable put in the windows of the various stores.

A worthy tailor, who was interested in the cause, said to himself: "I cannot help the cause by public speaking; I have no talent for that; but as hundreds of people pass my store every day, I will put one of these placards in my window. I will devote this large pane to placards, tracts, or papers which, by the blessing of God, some may be induced to read and read."

Near him lived a man noted for his hard drinking. Every day he might be seen with a brown jug in his hand on his way to the whisky saloon. He had to pass the tailor's store. His eye rested on the placard. He stopped and read it, and passed on to the saloon. This occurred several mornings, and the tailor within could see the man's face without himself being observed. He noticed that the man's interest in the placard increased, and by the twitches of his face, it was evident that the words were making a deep impression on his mind.

One morning the tailor was surprised at seeing the man with the jug again reading the placard, and then heard him say: "Oh! oh! I will! I will!" at the same time, raising the jug high over his head, he dashed it down on the pavement in a thousand pieces. This drew the tailor to the door, when the drinker spoke to the man and invited him into his store, where he encouraged him, and as he was a Christian man, prayed with him, and ere long the noted drinker became a converted man. A very silent worker was this placard, but it was the means, by God's blessing, of stopping the man from further drinking. Surely we can use to as good purpose the printed page, as the foregoing instance will show.—National Advocate.

ALCOHOL AND SUGAR.

Tests in the Armies of Great Britain and Germany as to Their Value as a Ration.

The British authorities some time ago made a test of the alleged value of alcohol when men are subjected to unusual and exhausting labor. Experiments were made at different times, and under varying conditions with three regiments from each of several brigades. In one every man was forbidden to drink any alcohol whatever while the test lasted; in the second malt liquor only was taken; in the third a ration of whisky was given to each man. The whisky drinkers manifested more dash at first, but generally in about four days showed signs of weakness and fatigue; those given malt liquor displayed less dash at first, but their endurance lasted somewhat longer, while the abstemious improved daily in alertness and staying powers.

In the German army experiments are being made with sugar, which is claimed to have such great sustaining powers that it is proposed to serve it as an extra ration when manual fatigues are to be borne.—Medical Record.

Who Is Responsible?

Who is responsible? A quiet, well-to-do neighborhood is shocked by a horrid crime. An innocent life is sacrificed and other lives are wrecked. "He was drunk," is the explanation. That is the statement of the immediate cause, but does that sum up the case? Is the community innocent? Have the people been active in sustaining the public sentiment against intemperance? Have they, by the enforcement of the laws, done all in their power to prevent the sale of liquor? Have drunken men been arrested and made to suffer for their crime? Have the people who are themselves temperate, felt that they are responsible for the social customs of their community and the personal habits of those under their care? Do they realize that the individual is, in large measure, the product of the community in which he has been brought up and lives?—United Presbyterian.

Liquor Cursus of Africa.

The liquor curse among the natives of Africa is kept up by exportations from this country, and Boston is reported to be the chief port of exportation. On the west coast of Africa and far inland, bottles of gin and demijohns of rum are used as the common currency; and on the Congo one-half of all that the natives produce is paid for with liquor. Testimony before a committee of the house of representatives showed in 1890 that about 12,000,

000 gallons of spirituous liquors are annually sent from Europe and America to Africa.

Popular Delusion Shattered.
Another popular delusion is shattered. Prof. Leonard Stejneger, a United States government expert, says that whisky, instead of being an antidote for snake bites, according to the general belief, is really an aggravation of the trouble, as it accelerates the circulation of the blood and hurries the poison through the veins and arteries with greater rapidity than it would otherwise have. Chicago Tribune.

CREATING APPETITE.

Saloon Keepers Interested in Keeping Up the Supply of Drinkers.

The Missionary Review of the World says: "At a recent meeting of the Ohio Liquor League, one of the officers delivered an address. From which the following is an extract: 'The success of our business is dependent largely upon the creation of appetite for drink. Men who drink liquor like others, will die, and if there is no new appetite created our counters will be empty, as will our coffers. After men have grown and their habits are formed, they rarely ever change in this regard. It will be needless, therefore, that missionary work be done among the boys, and I make the suggestion, gentlemen, that nickels expended in treats to the boys now will return in dollars to your tills after the appetite is formed. Above all things, create appetite.'"

This does away with arguments for the saloon based on the assertion that the saloon is a necessity, that it is the poor man's club, that he must have a place to go that he may get away from cross wife and crying children. The saloon is run for revenue only; when the revenue stops the saloon shuts its doors. The club feature, the asylum for persecuted labor fleeing from cross wives and crying babies, is not the reason for keeping the saloon; the man behind the bar, or the brewer behind the man behind the bar is in the business for the money he can get, not for the good he can do. Quite aside from the fact that the wife is crosser and the baby more fretful after the man has returned, the man himself being muddled by his evening in the asylum from acting the part of husband and father, the great danger from the saloon is simply this, that it creates appetite. It does not need a want, it makes a want. It deals in rotten grains and makes rotten men. The appetite for good fellowship is natural; the appetite for alcohol is artificial, created. The saloon does not exist to meet the natural appetite, but to create the artificial appetite. It makes goods and it makes a market; the goods come from the fields that bear grain for food, the market comes from the homes that are robbed and wronged to make a market. A created appetite does not stop when created, it destroys the natural appetite for good fellowship and wrecks the home.

Appetites go in droves, the saloon enters to the gambling appetite, to the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye. What the church is set to destroy, the saloon is set to create or foster. Think! The raw material woven into the web of appetite by your saloon may be the thread of life spun in your home. The creator of appetite asks no questions; it will invest nickels in your boy for dollars as quickly as in any boy. In the sight of God our boy is as good as another; in the sight of the saloon a boy is simply a possible appetite, and a created appetite is a source of income. Ought Christian men to perpetuate an institution whose avowed purpose is to create appetite; whose success is at the cost of all that makes life worth living in a decent community?—Rev. D. P. Gilford, D. D., in Chicago Standard.

Kin-Hoo Coffee.

One of the most prominent physicians in this country, whose specialty is the stomach, says of Kin-Hoo Coffee: "Its delicious and rare aroma imparts a delightful sensation to the taste buds, and rises like incense to the olfactory nerves, a lasting odor of sweet fragrance, like the pleasure of memory, it lasts long after the cup of pleasure has been drained. The stomach feels its warm soothing sensation devoid of the astringent effects of the common grades. The caffeine stimulates the heart, giving buoyancy and a feeling of well being and good will toward men."

Messrs. James Heekin & Co.'s Celebrated Kin-Hoo Coffee is demonstrated at the Rurode Dry Goods Co., 36 and 48 Calhoun street, free, and this is the last day. Those who have not enjoyed a cup of this delicious coffee would do well to call and try it.

An Ounce of Proof
Is worth more to you than

Pounds of Talk!

You can get the proof free if you will call and examine the splendid values we are showing for the month of May. We use no "band wagon" methods to sell goods, such as placing exaggerated possible values on goods, selling "below cost," etc. We do not carry "cheap goods" at "cheap prices," but good goods at 25 per cent. lower prices than shown anywhere else. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING to prove this statement. In advertising we appeal to your reason only.

The furniture situation is this—Prices of quartered oak have gone up 25 per cent., teak being formed in all lines. Having laid in a large stock before the rise in prices we are enabled to sell them at old prices.

Take Warning—Buy Now—This is no Idle Talk—Prices Have Already taken a Big Jump.

This complete chamber suit, antique, well-finished, large bed and dresser, guaranteed. While they last—$10.85

When we think of baby cabs we think of the WAKEFIELD. It's not the only cab, but it looks down and smiles on the rest of them. A brand new lot for next week. Prices push them along almost automatically. We have a "starter," with rubber tires, at $4.90

The construction of this Refrigerator makes a strong appeal to your reason. Air passes down the large opening in ice chamber; then passes through the provision chamber. PURE COLD and DRY, forcing the warm air up along the sides and out the air flues at the end of ice chamber and onto the ice again to be cooled, condensed and purified. The above cut also shows the cork filling in the walls. Granulated cork is much more expensive than any of the other insulators. You will save 25 per cent. in ice in one season. Price of this Refrigerator as shown in cut is $7.25
